Eckener and the Moth
Lincoln's Short Letter
Said John D., Sr.
Thorough Banditry
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

DOCTOR ECKENER will fly back with his great Zeppelin the latter part of next week. He has confidence in his ship, and says it needs the round trip.

Meanwhile, Commander H. C. MacDonald, an English flier, started for England last night, from this side, taking off in a tiny moth plane of 100 horsepower and fuel for 35 hours of flight.

Commander MacDonald, only 32, might save his courage for something more useful. But the world will wish him well in his gamble with death.

On June 13, 1848, Abraham Lincoln wrote to William H. Herndon a short letter, telling what he thought of Zachary Taylor's prospects of election.

The letter was sold yesterday for $3000.

Lincoln, 37 years old, when he wrote that letter, would have been amazed had he known what would happen to it.

At that time he would have been glad to get the job in the Interior Department for which he applied unsuccessfully. Fortunately he didn't get it, for it might have taken him out of politics.

In so-called "investment trusts," formed here and there, you are invited to buy stock and told "we buy assorted stocks, using our magnificent judgment, buying the best. Your big or little investment will increase in value as the stocks we buy increase in value."

So they will, IF the stocks increase in value.

You know the story about John D. Rockefeller, Sr., urged to buy stock in a small railroad, because a big railroad was going to lease it for 99 years and guarantee dividends.

Mr. Rockefeller inquired, "Did he happen to mention who was going to guarantee the guarantor?"

Some investment trusts undoubtedly will produce excellent returns, some WON'T.

Be as careful in selecting an investment company to invest money as you would in selecting a trust company to handle your estate.

The mere word "trust" doesn't mean anything.

Thoroughness is the cornerstone of modern banditry. A young woman, wife of an alleged bank burglar, who could tell a story dangerous to criminals, will never tell it on this earth. She was found yesterday morning with her throat cut and her head battered in.

Chicago contributes four bombings in different parts of the city. The bombing represents a new form of industry, the "racketeers" exploding bombs in three tire and battery shops and one shoe shop in the effort to frighten such concerns into paying tribute.

This campaign has not been able, apparently, to interest President Coolidge very deeply or, at least, not deeply enough to make him enter the campaign actively.

But on Tuesday night Governor Smith told a big crowd in Sedalia, Mo., and millions of people via the radio, that President Coolidge's economy is nothing but a MYTH. He quoted figures, using all his intensely convincing methods in presenting Mr. Coolidge and his Republican party, in plain English, as a "BLUFF," so far as economy is concerned.

President Coolidge will stand anything in reason, but not EVERYTHING. And Governor Smith, by that statement, may find that he has done what nobody else could do, in starting Mr. Coolidge as an active worker in this campaign.

If that happens it will not be bad news for Mr. Hoover.

If news is "what never happened before," this really is news.

In Germany a flying machine traveled from Berlin to Dessau with the controls in the hands of an artificial "iron man" made of metal. A new gyroscopic steering device worked perfectly.

No hand but that of the Robot touched the controls, except when taking off and landing. The man of iron, sitting rigid in his seat, held the controls until the machine was above the landing field.

Men used to say, "flying will never be practical." What would they have said about a man, artificially made, steering a flying machine through the clouds?

Mexico is a dangerous place for rebels. The latest news tells how Florencio Sanchez, a captured rebel, betrayed five of his followers, to save his own life. Having told what he knew he was immediately executed. His associates were executed, also by shooting.

BODY OF LITTLE GIRL FOUND IN WAKEFIELD; SALEM DRIVER HELD

The body of Mary Virginia O'Connell, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger B. O'Connell of 11 Bennett st., Wakefield, was found today surrounded in a heap of autumn leaves in the road in front of her home.

The body was taken by Nathan Ramen of 37 Roslyn st., Salem, to the police. He said he saw the child [illegible] among the leaves at the side of the road as he was driving his automobile in Bennett st.

Ramen who first [illegible] had any knowledge of [illegible] girl's death but afterward admitted, police state, that it probably was his car that struck her, was arraigned for manslaughter and held in $1000.

As far as could be learned there were no witnesses of the tragedy and no other children could be found who were with the victim, who had been out out to play by her mother a short time before.

GLORY OR DEATH---HIS PRIZE

New York, Oct. 18.—The Republican organization in New York State today launched campaign to place responsibility for the $16,000,000 Queensborough sewer scandal at the door of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Following the conviction yesterday in Long Island City of Maurice E. Connolly, resigned borough president of Queens, and Frederick B. Seely, former chief of the Queen's sewer bureau, Republican speakers dug into the seven years' history of al-

MAY ASK FOLEY'S AID IN HOSPITAL CHARGES

Declaring the death of his child, Rose Mary McMahon, in City Hospital, was "nothing short of murder," City Councilor Thomas W. McMahon of Dorchester said today he would press his charges against the institution regardless of what anyone may say.

He added he may call on Dist. Atty. William J. Foley before the matter is finished.

Councilor McMahon, whose charges are to be investigated by a special committee of the City Council at a public hearing in City Hall tomorrow, said he had received many letters containing complaints against conditions at the hospital, and he will present them at the hearing.

STOCKS SENT KITING IN BOILING MARKET

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Speculation for the advance was conducted with considerable violence in today's stock market. High priced industrials and specialties were whirled up 5 to 30 points to new high records, with a long list of standard industrials and rails advancing 1 to 4 points. There were several soft spots scattered throughout the list, however, particularly the New York traction, which lost ground on selling inspired by the belief that the U. S. Supreme Court would decide against the higher fare.

So great was the volume of trading that the ticker fell 40 minutes behind the market by early afternoon. Total sales for the day probably will run close to 5,000,000 shares.

Call money renewed at 7 percent.

SAFETY INSPECTION IN SUBURBS JAMS TRAFFIC

Inspection of automobiles by Greater Boston police, co-operating with state officers in the governor's safety drive, caused traffic jams in some instances today and in others gave motorists much to think about.

There was a line of cars half a mile long on the northern artery, from every division to work with state officials in this inspection which will include check-up of brakes and lights, as well as licenses, registrations and insurance.

Mario Vagni, of Nashua, N. H., a truck driver, was fined $5 in Somerville for driving without a license, having been stopped by one of the officers in the drive there. After court he had to wait for a substitute driver to take his truck home.

FEAR SOLO FLIER LOST ON OCEAN HOP; PLANE IS SEEN FAR OFF COURSE

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—Last reported far north of his course, Lieut.-Comdr. H. C. MacDonald, daring British aviator who set out from Harbor Grace in a tiny gypsy moth plane on a non-stop solo flight to England, was long overdue this afternoon.

Anxiety for his safety increased as hour after hour went by without his arrival, and this worry was in no way decreased by the receipt of first news of his sighting at sea at 7:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, last night, 7 hours and 30 minutes after he hopped off.

This news came from the Dutch steamer Hardenberg by way of the Leviathan, and placed the intrepid flier about 840 miles east of Belle Isle and about 200 miles north of the direct Circle route from Harbor Grace to England.

The message read:

Airplane passed steamer Hardenberg latitude 53.10 north, longitude 41.30 west, 0030 Greenwich meridian time—Aster.

The position was much farther north of the course that he would normally follow from Harbor Grace, but was on the direct course between Belle Isle and Fastnet.

The position of the plane indicated that Commander MacDonald up to that point had been making an average of about 100 miles an hour.

The Hardenberg is a Dutch steamer. She sailed from Montreal on Oct. 11 for Antwerp.

None of the watchers along the west coast of Ireland caught a glimpse of the plane, and during the early morning hours reports from that section indicated most unfavorable weather.

Later, however, the wind died down somewhat and visibility was greatly improved.

Hope continued that MacDonald might have passed over his objective point in Ireland and was proceeding onward, possibly to the Croydon airdrome, which would add about four hours to his flight.

Bulletiins

Dublin, Nov. 18 (AP)—At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, or about 12 hours after his start from Newfoundland, there was no word of Lieut.-Comdr. MacDonald, the British aviator, from any point in Ireland. Weather conditions, which were bad in the morning, had improved as the day wore on.

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 18 (AP)—No word had been received here up to 10:30 a. m. today of Commander MacDonald. There was a considerable fog and rain with southerly wind. A watch was kept at Harbor Grace airport until after midnight and beacons were ready in the event of the airman's return.

Plymouth, Eng., Oct. 18 (AP)—Naval air stations here were on the watch for the Gypsy Moth this afternoon, but at 5 o'clock (eastern standard time) had seen no sign of her. The weather was unfavorable. A gale was raging from the southwest and heavy rain made visibility poor.

SHIP FAILS TO SEE MacDONALD ON HIS COURSE

Steamship America, Oct. 18 (By Wireless to AP)—The steamship America all today plied a direct course from Fastnet, Ire., to Cape Race, N. F., along that Lt.-Com. MacDonald had been expected to take, but no sign of the flier was evident, although a close lookout was kept.

EXPERT MECHANICS MAKING STABILIZER WHOLE AGAIN

COMMANDER AND FLIGHT HERO ENJOY AMERICAN BREAKFAST
Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Zepp, and his son, Knut, breakfasting at the Warwick Hotel, New York. It was Knut Eckener who risked his life repairing the big ship at sea. He is a member of her crew.

THE HEROINE OF THE FLIGHT
Lady Drummond Hay was much photographed when she visited New York. In the thrilling story of the flight she wrote for the Hearst newspapers she praised the Graf Zeppelin and her crew.

Felt Thrill of Conquest On Zepp, Says Lady Hay

EXCLUSIVE!

(Conclusion of the remarkable narrative of Lady Drummond Hay, British noblewoman and only woman passenger aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its epochal flight from Germany to America, is printed today. Her narrative was prepared for sending by radio, but because of radio difficulties, the titled woman journalist was unable to dispatch her story from the big dirigible.)

ABOARD the Graf Zeppelin, Oct. 13 (Delayed)—At first most passengers construed the message as SOS. Others thought vessels in neighborhood—and they are few and far between—had been summoned for help. All kinds of surmises as to our fate, even as far as thinking we would have to be towed to America.

At the time of the accident Eckener ordered half speed in order to effect necessary repairs. After a time we got going about 40 miles, and now, at 2 o'clock, 63 miles.

Rosendahl came in to say we may soon be up to cruising speed again. Eckener canceled his request that ships stand by, broadcast a couple of hours ago.

With good weather and wind behind us, lighter skies, the sun trying to break out through clouds, everyone is cheering up.

Heiner and Gilfillan are comparing notes.

Gilfillan is utterly disgruntled at this turn of event. He admits that he expected to find organized service and organized weather and is not shy at expressing his disgust that the weather god reigns all-powerful.

"Now would you have come on this Zeppelin if you had known what to expect?" he demands of Heiner, to which the latter spiritedly replies:

"The experience is worth everything. It's the finest trip I've ever made. Jolly glad I'm here."

It's after 2, and there's no sign of lunch. I know there are practically no plates left, but is there no food?

Anyhow, there is plenty to eat. The Zeppelin has been presented with hundreds of complimentary packets of sweet biscuits, honey cakes and chocolates, specimens with which my table is well loaded.

I'm getting thoroughly spoiled by stewards and passengers.

That's one advantage of being the only woman, and I am feminine enough to revel in small attentions.

Things are settling down to normal. We all wish we could notify our relatives that the danger is passed. The first shaking-up lasted eight minutes, then calm, and only at the news of Eckener's call for vessels was anxiety reborn.

This morning's experience is the most marvelous advertisement and proof of the stability and safety of the Zeppelin and Eckener's fine commandership. I have more confidence than ever in the airship, for long distance transoceanic travelling.

WITHOUT LUNCH

There wasn't any lunch as I guessed. Owing to no electricity, no cooking facilities.

So we were later served with sausage and smoked salmon on slices of bread and butter, with glasses of condensed milk because the wine has given out.

Two o'clock proved to be one o'clock owing to the change in time.

This day—13th—is likely to be the longest we've known for some time. Already we added two or three hours to the regulation 121. Blue gray clouds, the airship going along fine.

In the afternoon things brightened up considerably, the airship was making better speed, the weather generally improved, passengers settled down to various occupations.

Wilhelm Bock, last year's transatlantic hero, played patience; Count Alexander Brandenstein Zeppelin and Robb Brandt had a game of chess with the miniature set of chessmen for the use of which there is considerable competition.

PRISON FOR TRIO IN KILLING OF SOLDIER

Two prison sentences, an indefinite term at Concord and two orders to pay $500 to the mother of Private Kaeg Solari of Camp Devens in connection with his death last July, were meted out to five youths today in Middlesex Superior Court.

The youths were charged with manslaughter after an attack in Powder House Sq., Somerville, over a girl.

Percy F. Graves, 20, of Mystic st., Somerville, and William J. Graves, 22, of Monument st., Charlestown, were sentenced to five years and a day at State prison.

George E. Welsh, 19, of Main st., Medford, was sent to Concord Reformatory for an indefinite term and Thomas Finnegan, of Moreland st., and James A. Tait, of Highland ave., both Somerville, were placed on probation with an order for each to pay $300 to Mrs. Solari in Italy.

Atty.-Gen. Albert Ottinger, Republican gubernatorial candidate, in opening his campaign upstate cited the Queens sewer-graft scandal in his indictment of Tammany Hall rule in New York City.

A campaign pamphlet circulated by the Republican State Committee declares that although Governor Smith's attention was directed to the irregularities of the Queens contracts by a special investigating committee of the state assembly as early as 1921 the inquiry which led to the indictment of Connolly and Sealy did not begin until December, 1927.

FORCED STATE PROBE

Charges that Queens officials paid three and four times as much for sewer pipe as other cities were the nub of the public protest which forced the investigation by a special state commission.

Estimates of this "cut" between contractors and borough officials during the last eight years place the total at roughly $16,500,000.

John M. Phillips, lock-joint pipe dealer of Queens and a power in the Queensborough city hall, was indicted with Connolly and Sealy last June. Phillips died suddenly ten days later at Atlantic City.

Connolly was sentenced yesterday to a year in the penitentiary and fined $500.

William L. D'Oller, a competing sewer contractor a star witness for the prosecution against the so-called "Connolly ring," was found dead in a Queens cemetery three weeks before the trial began, September 24.

Four days after the trial got under way a grand jury which investigated D'Oller's death returned a verdict of "murdered by a person or persons whose names are to us unknown."

Charging that obstacles were put in the path of the investigation "by the disappearance of important witnesses," the Republican Campaign pamphlet places responsibility upon the New York City Democratic organization, recalling at the same time that Governor Smith received a majority of 43,000 in Queens in 1924 and increased his majority to 85,000 in 1926.

ALL QUIT UNDER FIRE.

Republican State managers also charge openly that members of the Connolly group were participants in a Queens "harmony dinner" at the Hillmore Hotel, October 10, at which Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic National Committee and M. William Bray, Democratic State chairman, attempted to smooth out factional differences for the presidential balloting November 6.

Raskob today said he didn't think the Queens situation could have any effect on the national election. "Recent meetings of Queens leaders smoothed out the situation," he added.

Connolly had served as borough president of Queens for almost 16 years when he resigned under fire last April.

Every borough president installed in the Queens "sand patches" since the consolidation of the five boroughs into Greater New York City in 1898, has quit under fire.

Gresser, who preceded Connolly, was removed in 1912. Connolly was soon elected as the reform candidate. Joseph Bermal, Gresser's predecessor, fled to Europe under charges, two years after his election. "Curly Joe" Cassidy, the first of the line of borough presidents, went to jail after he quit the office.

In the State primaries, September 18, Bernard M. Patten, candidate of the Connolly organization, won the nomination for borough president b

CURLEY DRAWS CROWD AT NOON SMITH RALLY

Another large crowd turned out today for the noon Smith rally sponsored by ex-Mayor James M. Curley in old Young's hotel.

As a result of his demands Curley announced the police commissioner had closed Court st. to traffic from Washington st. to Scollay sq., between 1 and 2 p. m., "until after Smith's election."

The former mayor said he had received pledge cards from 150 men and women who have agreed to work at the polls on election day without pay.

Replying to the criticism of a Hoover speaker imported to Massachusetts from California, that his methods were "coarse and crude," Curley said that three D's had been set up as a course of conduct when the Young's hotel rallies were started. These, he said, were Decency, Dignity and Decorum, while Dirt, Dogma and Defamation were banned.

The speaker said he had noticed that the Republicans had borrowed a leaf from the book of the Democrats and taken over the old coffee house in Scollay sq., which he characterized as "Boston's Teapot Dome." Referring to literature passed out at this place, based on prosperity under the Republican administration, Curley said it probably would not be distributed in Lawrence, Lowell, New Bedford and other textile centers.

There is a question here among aviation authorities as to the distance Commander MacDonald would be able to fly with the amount of gas he had aboard, and the time he could remain in the air.

Some fix the period of time at 24 hours, which would mean that he must have already come down somewhere. Others place the time limit at 30 hours, while a few ventured the belief he could remain in the air 35 hours.

Another consideration which caused anxiety is the brief experience the commander has had in handling an airplane, particularly at night, but counterbalancing this, in some measure, is his well-known ability as a navigation officer.

WIFE RETAINS FAITH

The wife of the flier and his little son look forward to his return home by air with confidence and joy. Mrs. MacDonald, like other wives who have awaited the return of their husbands on perilous ventures, expressed today her belief that he would "make it."

Mrs. MacDonald sat up all night in her Kensington apartments in the hope she would hear some tidings of her husband's daring flight over the seas. Her son slept as she maintained her anxious vigil.

A friend who was with her said: "It is a very anxious time for her and I think she is worrying more because the news of Comdr. MacDonald's departure came as a shock. She knew, of course, that he intended to attempt to fly the Atlantic some time, but had no idea he intended to start so soon."

Later in the day Mrs. MacDonald said to reporters:

"While of course I am anxious, I have all faith that the venture will be a success. I think the course will be towards Ireland and that it is possible a landing will be made in that country."

Mrs. MacDonald said that she would not have been able to sleep last night, if so inclined, because so many friends were telephoning her for news of the progress of the flight.

The gypsy moth De Havilland biplane in which MacDonald flew is a midget compared to the Spirit of St. Louis of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh—in sooth no man ever to make a solo flight across the seas.

MacDonald's engine has only 80 to 100 horsepower, compared with Lindbergh's 250.

TAKES LITTLE FOOD.

Although it was regarded as possible that ice might form on the wings of the machine and force MacDonald down, weather conditions on the whole were described as being in his favor. Off Newfoundland there was a 20-mile wind at his back to help him on his journey, it was thought there was a freezing temperature at an altitude of a thousand or more feet.

MacDonald took a quart of coffee in a thermos bottle and two dozen sandwiches when he started.

The moth planes have a maximum speed of about 105 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 85 miles an hour.

On the assumption that he would take advantage of the 20-mile wind and throttle his machine down to 85 miles an hour, giving the plane a speed of about 105 miles an hour, to save his scant supply of fuel, he should have reached the Irish coast between 18 and 19 hours after his hopoff.

He took up aviation after he retired from the navy and quickly established a reputation for daring. Last May, after only 18 hours of training in dual flights and 10 hours of solo flying, he started for India by air. He experienced a slight accident on the outward trip and came down at Bagdad, Irak.

On his homeward journey he met with another accident and made a forced landing in the desert. He was held prisoner by an Arab tribe until he got a message through which brought an Italian armored car to rescue.

In the navy, MacDonald won the Distinguished Service Cross. He was a lieutenant on the destroyer Wyneck when he retired in 1925 and afterward was promoted to lieutenant commander on the retired list.

MacDonald's Plane Smallest Ever to Try Long Sea Hop

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Salient facts on the Gypsy Moth De Havilland biplane in which Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald took off from Newfoundland for England follow:

It is the smallest plane in which a long ocean flight ever has been attempted.

It has an open cockpit, exposing its lone pilot to the elements.

It has a wing spread of only 36 feet and when folded this is reduced to nine feet, ten inches.

Its weight when empty is 893 pounds.

HUB NAVAL FLIER DUCKED WHEN PLANE IS WRECKED

Ensign Arthur Linscott, naval reservist of Boston, was "all wet" in two ways today in his attempt to hop off in a seaplane at Squantum Naval Air Station. He failed to see a channel buoy as he taxied and opened his throttle full.

One wing snagged the buoy, the seaplane promptly flipped over and Linscott was tossed into the chilly sea. Both wings of the plane collapsed. He swam ashore.

MADE A SUDDEN TAKEOFF

Flight Comdr. H. C. MacDonald's takeoff from Harbor Grace on a solo flight across the Atlantic took the world by surprise. Although he had been waiting for days for favorable weather to start his hop, the young aviator's decision to start out over the Atlantic was a sudden one.

LOVE LEADS HER TO BE 'A BRIDE OF DEATH'

A suicidal sacrifice at the flaming pyre of religious animosities, Ethel Blum, the "Joan Farnum" of Boston, was identified in a Brooklyn morgue.

Disappointed in love but a make-believe bride in death, she took her life a month ago, and not until yesterday was her real identity known.

"Don't be discouraged, Jimmy," she penned to Jimmy LaMagna, her unattainable choice, before she conquered the age-old spectre of racial incompatability of Jew and Christian by ending her young life with gas.

Search for his missing sister led Joseph Blum, a Brooklyn tailer, to scan the faces of incompletely identified dead in the rough-hewn caskets of a Brooklyn mortuary.

"IT'S MY SISTER"

Timidly he approached one which contained a mere slip of a girl clad in wedding finery, a lingering smile upon her lips, and the wisp of a curl peeping beneath the hood of the plain shroud in which she was enveloped.

"My sister Ethel" he said, and the mystery of "Joan Farnum," lonely suicide in a Brooklyn rooming house, was solved.

Next appeared to gaze upon her in death was Jimmy LaMagna, her Christian sweetheart, whose mother had forbidden their marriage.

MOTHER OBJECTS.

"We loved each other," Jimmy said. "When I met her, she had many boy friends; eight or ten were always telephoning or writing to her.

"She gave them all up for me. She was a Jewess and I a Christian.

"But when I told my folks they said it never could happen. My mother said if I married Ethel she would die.

"I met her after that blow to our romance and we agreed to part."

So the former Boston girl on what was to have been her wedding night effected an eternal separation.

Girls of today were likened to negro slaves of 30 years ago by Lady Nancy Astor, member of Parliament, today at the Ritz Carlton, where she is spending a few days o fher visit to America.

"Girls are groping about and passing through very difficult times," she said. "However, I believe they will work things out all right and that wives 20 years from now will be more companions to their husbands than ever before.

"English women appreciate the vote more than American women because they had to fight harder to get it. This present campaign is a splendid thing for America because it is stirring up thought."

Asked for a message to the women of America, Lady Astor said: "Women ought to do their own thinking.

MORE THINKERS NEEDED.

"If people think more it will be difficult for politicians to put anything over on them. Bolshevism was put over because of the ignorance of 90 per cent of the people. It is hard to get folk stirred up about local government, but you cannot get good national government unless you do.

"I consider myself an emblem of British justice. Over there no one is afraid to say where he comes from and the fact that I am an American by birth and love America is well known and has never been concealed. Over here a man is almost ruled right out of politics if he has ever been in England.

"And then in America some notorious mayor makes half-witted criticisms of England and his words go around the world, while in Parliament somebody makes a complimentary speech about America and nobody ever hears about it. I think the press can do much toward cementing the friendship of England and America.

SILENT ON DRY LAW.

"I am not going to talk about prohibition. I'll return in two years and maybe say something about it then. And as for politics, I have too many friends to discuss the candidate of any party.

"I come to Boston because I love this city. It seems to me to be one American town that doesn't change."

She is going to be in or near Boston until Sunday, when she leaves for New York to sail for home. She will be a guest of the Bayard Tuckermans on the North Shore and will attend the Willowdale hunt of the Myopia Hunt Club, which will take place at the Bradley Palmer estate at Hamilton on Saturday.

FIRST WOMAN TO FLY ATLANTIC

COMMONER ON COMMON

Lady Nancy Astor, member of British Parliament, as she appeared when snapped today while on Boston Common. In a speech here she said modern girls were like "slaves," but predicted they would make ideal wives in the future. Lady Astor will be a North Shore guest over the week end.

WHITE GIRL AND 4 CHINESE HELD

Four Chinese and one white girl, Helen E. Bradshaw, former friend of the slayer, Stephen Hoppe, were arraigned in municipal court today in connection with police measures to suppress tong warfare, as further outbreaks were feared.

One of the Chinese was charged with the shooting yesterday of Yong Hong, laundryman at 451 Shawmut ave., and the others with having weapons in their possession, heavy bail being imposed in all cases on recommendation of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

The Bradshaw girl, who testified as a Government witness at Hoppe's recent Dedham trial, was arraigned with Thomas Lee of Edinboro st. on a statutory charge, and the Chinese was also charged with possessing a gun as an alien. Bail was fixed at $5000 and $5500 respectively.

Their cases were continued to October 26.

Jim Y. Chin, alias Ow Guen, also of Edinboro st., was charged with assault with intent to kill Wong Nong in his Shawmut ave. laundry, and was held in $15,000 until the 26th. Hong, who was slightly wounded in the left shoulder, positively identified Chin, police say.

Leng Lee and Chin Ying Lie, both of Harvard st., charged with possessing guns as aliens, were held in $5000 each until October 26.

Chelsea Woman Is First to Fly Solo at Hub Airport

With eleven hours of instruction as her foundation, Mrs. Frank H. Chase of Washington ave., Chelsea, wife of the prominent Chelsea physician, flew "solo" today, the first woman to "go solo" at the Boston airport.

Although a bit nervous when she found herself alone in the ship, Mrs. Chase made three perfect landings. She flew alone again this afternoon.

The woman was instructed by August Pabst and Lieut. Adolph. Backstrom, chief student instructor of the Boston Airport Corporation.

'L' CONDUCTOR STABBED IN ROW

Mark S. McCauley, 35, a Boston Elevated conductor living in Western ave., Cambridge, was stabbed in the right side and right shoulder today while engaged in an altercation over a bill in a market near his home.

His assailant, an employe of the store, fled in the direction of Boston.

McCauley was rushed in a police ambulance to Cambridge Relief Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Police are searching for the stabber, whose name they have.

Falls Down Elevator Well

Harry Drubosky, 48, of 24 Bartlett st., Roxbury, stepped into an elevator well at 66 Pearl st., where he is employed as a janitor, and fell to the basement from the first floor today. He was discovered by a tenant and taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital suffering from a broken left leg.

GIRL THROWN FROM HORSE AND IS KILLED

Brockton, Oct. 18—A fractured skull, suffered when she was thrown from a horse Tuesday, caused the death today of Miss Mildred Ulmer, 16, daughter in a wealthy and socially prominent family of New Rochelle, N. Y.

The girl, a senior at Howard Seminary in West Bridgewater, died in Moore Hospital.

Her mother, stopping with friends in Wellesley, visited the girl at the hospital yesterday, at which time it was believed she was recovering.

FELT THRILL OF CONQUEST, SAYS LADY HAY

While we were all snugly occupied in the passenger quarters, heroic work was going on outside. Perilously perched on the damaged fin, Knute Eckener, the commodore's son, and Marx, the navigator, working under the direction of Dieckmann and Baueris, chief engineers, with several other courageous men, including Ladwig, Samt and Norr, remained until 11 at night at this dangerous task.

TASK FOR HEROES

Little imagination is needed to picture the task before them. The huge airship, hundreds of feet above the sea, a certain amount of wind inevitable in spite of the slow speed, the danger of falling, the urgent necessity of mending the fin, the possibility of a fresh gale to wreck still further havoc, pressure of time.

It was a noble piece of work, and there is not a man aboard, from Dr. Eckener himself to Bock, the aviator, who does not recognize the value of the achievement. I would hesitate to guess how many tens of thousands of words were inscribed after the events of the day.

Saturday, the 13th of October, will not soon be forgotten by this little band at least.

For supper we had frankfurters and bread and butter, and some one offered me a glass of wine, for wine is now a private monopoly. There is no more to be bought from the steward, but those who have it are often generous enough to go shares.

The gathering broke up early. Most of them had had enough for one day.

This is October 14th. I was up at 4 o'clock this morning, although I thought it was 5 o'clock. But they had changed the clock again. Despite the warning that washing water is to give out, there was still plenty of hot and cold.

I anticipated a luxurious bath in New York tonight, Sunday, with lots of hot towels, instead of the solitary paper serviettes we use on the airship which melt to pulp in one's hand. Still hoping for New York in time for dinner—"and oysters."

Dr. Robert Reiner whispered enticingly. I wrote at least 50 postcards to my friends in Europe, telling them that the journey was at an end and that the storm incident had only proved the safety and stability of the airship, for an airplane certainly, would have crashed in similar circumstances.

Then the word went around that there is absolutely no likelihood of reaching America today, and perhaps not even tomorrow, Sunday.

Yesterday the calculations regarding position and speed were not correct, hence our disappointment. Furthermore, the ship was fighting her way against a 35-mile head wind at a speed not more than 21 miles an hour.

Breakfast was not forthcoming because the electric heater depends upon the speed of the airship and the speed was not great enough to function the outside propeller upon which the whole motor runs.

By 3:30 this morning (Sunday) the dining room presented a spectacle almost as absurd in a way as it had yesterday when the crash came. Obviously hungry groups sitting round the tables, trying to kill time by writing postcards. It would be appalling to try to guess how many postcards have been written on this trip.

Frederick Giffilan, more dependent than ever, was telling his cabin mate, Reiner, that he wished to goodness he had had the presence of mind to bring a revolver with him as "nothing is worse than lingering torture."

He murmured it hoarsely.

"It takes six or seven hours to die," he added.

That is the frame of mind he has been in ever since the incident yesterday.

Hollywood, Oct 18 (INS)—Wild horses couldn't tear the contract with Charlie Chaplin loose from Virginia Cherrill, much less a mere grandmother.

When Mrs. A. M. Cherrill, in Chicago, today learned her grandaughter had just secured the much-coveted role as Chaplin's leading lady, she emphatically voiced her disapproval. It was reported.

"That's just too bad," declared Virginia as she boarded a train back to Chicago. "I'm 20 and able to take care of myself."

Virginia is en route to Carthage, Ill., where she will pick up her mother and then return to Hollywood.

BELIEVE TANK IS PART OF AMUNDSEN'S PLANE

Copenhagen, Oct. 18 (AP)—A fuel tank believed to belong to the French Latham plane in which Roald Amundsen and five companions are presumed to have died in an attempt to reach survivors of the ill-fated dirigible Italia, has been found.

The motorboat Keif arrived at Walderesund with the tank last night, having found it Saturday at latitude 64.53 north, longitude 8.50 east, about 200 miles north of Christiansund, Norway.

ZEPP LETTER STAMPS QUOTED AT $3 EACH

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Cancelled stamps on envelopes and postcards brought to this country by the Graf Zeppelin are causing keen competition among stamp collectors and dealers, with $3 reported quoted for the four-mark stamps on envelopes and $2 for the two-mark stamps on postcards. Post-office officials said the Zeppelin's mail consisted of 15 sacks, containing 23,124 letters and 7,580 postcards and that arrangements probably would be made for her to carry mail on her return trip.

Admits Stealing Ring

Lawrence, Oct. 18—After pleading guilty to larceny of a $500 diamond ring, Paul Craven, 36, of Foster st., today appealed a six months' sentence imposed in district court. The ring was the property of Mrs. Elmer Lewis of Andover.

FORD EXPECTED TO BE ZEPP PASSENGER

Thursday and fly to Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and many other cities en route as possible.

The dirigible will return to Lakehurst by sunset on Friday to take on a supply of Blau gas for the transatlantic flight to Friedrichshafen which will be undertaken as soon as the airship can be made ready, possibly as late as dawn on Monday, October 29.

Meanwhile, Dr. Eckener will visit Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago by train. He is reported to be interesting American capital in the formation of a $14,000,000 corporation to maintain a transatlantic passenger and mail service in superdirigibles. Conferences with unnamed financiers are scheduled to be held in Lakehurst today, in Philadelphia tomorrow and in Chicago next Tuesday in this connection.

Dr. Eckener is anxious to take his big dirigible over as many as possible of the cities that have requested a visit. He would like to fly across New York State, passing over Albany, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo and Lake Erie to Cleveland and Toledo and then to Detroit.

A more direct route from Lakehurst to Detroit would be over the air mail line across Pennsylvania.

From Detroit, where the Graf Zeppelin is to be moored to a mast during its visit Dr. Eckener plans to fly to Chicago.

Milwaukee has urgently requested a visit from the dirigible and it is hoped time will permit the Graf Zeppelin to circle that city before it strikes out for St. Louis.

A shed at St. Louis will provide accommodation for the airship if an overnight stop there is deemed necessary.

The course on the return from St. Louis may follow the Ohio river to pass over Cincinnati, Dayton and Columbus and return to Lakehurst across southern Pennsylvania, or it may swing south from St. Louis.

Dr. Eckener was to examine the Graf Zeppelin at Lakehurst today to note progress of repairs to the damaged stabilising fin.

Zeppelin Crew Will Be Honored in Washington

Washington, Oct. 18—Officers and crew of the Graf Zeppelin will travel to this nation's capital tomorrow by the presaic steam railroad to receive the highest honors ever conferred on foreign aviators.

They are to be the guests of President Coolidge and such members of his Cabinet as are in the city at one of the famous White House breakfasts.

From the White House they will go by motor to the grave of the Unknown Soldier, at Arlington National Cemetery, where Capt. Eckener will place a wreath on the tomb.

They will return to Washington for a luncheon to be given by Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air.

In the evening a reception will be given by the German embassy.

Saturday Capt. Eckener and his officers will confer with Navy officials and study plans for the new dirigible airships the Navy recently ordered built.

COMMUNIST POSTERS THREATEN MORROW

Mexico City, Oct. 18 (AP)—Two Communists caught pasting denunciatory posters on buildings were arrested today. One poster called upon the Mexican people to show contempt for the visiting members of the American Legion; the other was an unsigned open letter to Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, suggesting that for his own happiness he return to the United States and accusing him of intriguing so that President Calles may continue "tyrannizing the country."

OLD COLONY BOULEVARD LINK OPEN BY NOV. 1

The connecting link in the Old Colony boulevard, from Columbia rd. to Freeport st., Dorchester, will open the last of this month, the Metropolitan District Commission announced today. The new stretch will join the South Boston stand-way at Columbia road rapid transit station, relieving the rush of South Shore traffic through Gleaves corner and other congested points.

New Yale Play Director

New Haven, Oct. 18 (AP)—James Light, a play director and producer of New York, has been named director of the Yale Dramatic Association to succeed Douglas Ross, resigned. He will begin his new duties next month.

MELLON 'DUCKS' REAL ISSUE, SAYS SMITH

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Correspondent.

Chicago, Oct. 18—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon "ducked the issue" and "shifted his ground" when he attacked Governor Al Smith's speech on "Coolidge economy" at Sedalia, Mo. This was the reply the Democratic nominee himself made today to Mellon's statement issued in Washington.

"Why," Smith said with some heat, "He entirely evades the issue. In his speech over the radio he used the very important word—'reduction'—as applied to cost of government under the Coolidge administration.

"But you will notice that in his statement today he entirely omits his imporant word—'reduction.' He simply doesn't use it because I exposed that fallacy at Sedalia. Mr. Mellon has shifted his ground.

"Mr. Mellon said the Democrats would not give the Republicans credit for reduced cost of government. I said 'No, why should we, for there has been no reduction under the Coolidge administration.' On the contrary it has increased, and I showed it at Sedalia.

"There is not a single department of the government that can show a reduction since 1924. Mr. Mellon did not dispute that, for that comes from the public records.

"Tax reduction, yes. Of course there has been tax reduction. Nobody disputed that. But they were able to reduce taxes because the government went back from a wartime basis to a peace time basis. Nobody in possession of his normal faculties believes they could keep the country on a basis of war time taxation in peace time.

"They couldn't have avoided tax reduction unless they stood on the dome of the capital and scattered money around the city of Washington."

Gov. Smith received a tremendous ovation upon his arrival here late last night. Ten thousand people massed about Union station to welcome him, and the police had literally to fight their way out of the station with the governor in their midst.

HOOVER DEFENDED AS WHEAT FARMERS' FRIEND

Washington, Oct. 18 (INS)—Herbert Hoover was pictured as a friend of the wheat farmer by the Republican national committee today. Ex-Governor H. C. Stuart of Virginia was accused by National Chairman Work with falsifying records in an attempt to show that Hoover held down the price of the 1919 wheat crop.

HOOVER ASKS EXPORTERS TO 'CORRECT PUBLIC MIND'

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Speaking to members of the Hoover-Curtis national export committee, Herbert Hoover said today that it was of "extreme importance that the men who have their eyes fixed on the ball of America's future should get into this campaign and see that the public mind is corrected" as there are many issues and movements that "have nothing to do fundamentally with the prosperity and progress of the country."

"I appreciate your coming here and offering me your support," the nominee said in greeting the business men who called at his headquarters.

"You all know how I have felt during these years, that one primary factor in the stability of American business and continuation of employment has been the expansion of foreign trade, and in our endeavors to build up that expansion I think we have built up something else that is perhaps equally important.

"For the first time, so far as I know, government has been placed on the basis of co-operation rather than on a basis of compulsion. You know the vast number of committees that we have set up in every single export, not formal committees but actual working committees who have developed a co-ordination of trade activities and expanded the government facilities incidental to their work, thereby developing a strategy and a technique in trade expansion such as the world has never seen. I think the results show in our trade every day.

"You know as well as I know the enormous volume of opportunity that is constantly coming into American industry through the governmental agencies throughout the world, and the effect they have had in the actual expansion of trade.

"But more important than that, this whole organization, set up in co-operation with industry and export all over the country, has resulted in directing the public mind and our merchants and manufacturers to the primary necessity of trade as the basis of stability. So that we have many gains out of it.

"We have the gain in employment, probably to the extent of four or five hundred thousand in the export trade alone.

Hoover Leads Smith in Missouri Vote

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

Chicago, Oct. 18—For the first time since the big campaign got under way Herbert Hoover takes the lead in Missouri in the nation-wide Hearst poll this morning.

The figures are:

Hoover 11,632
Smith 11,463
Hoover lead.............. 259

These totals are made up of returns from 89 counties of the State, with the largest single block representing St. Louis city.

What is disclosed by a careful analysis of these tabulations is that the total vote of the State on November 6 will aggregate about 1,500,000, with at least half a million votes, and possibly slightly more, cast in the two cities of St. Louis and Kansas City.

SMITH AT TOP

The St. Louis figures are:

Smith 7721
Hoover 4869

The percentage is 62 for Smith, and 38 for Hoover.

Four years ago the total vote in St. Louis was about 265,000. The registration this years is about 60,000 greater.

The most conservative figures on the November 6 vote reach at least 300,000. On the percentage basis shown in today's Hearst poll, Smith would come out of the city with an indicated lead of 72,000.

Discriminating observers on the ground put Smith's probable lead in St. Louis, if the election were to be held today, at 25,000 to 50,000.

Kansas City has the largest registration in its history, about 200,000, an increase over the highest previous mark of approximatey 17 per cent.

Hoover 1424
Smith 562

It is conservatively estimated that at least 175,000 ballots will be put in the boxes in Kansas City. Carrying out the above percentages, the final division would be:

Hoover 123,500
Smith 52,500

Newspaper scouts estimated Hoover will carry Kansas City by all the way from 25,000 to 50,000. David Lawrence thinks 15,000 may be enough.

HOOVER TO WIN

The Literary Digest poll, meantime, gives Missouri to Hoover by 60.7 per cent of the total vote in the State, which based on the probable total of 1,500,000 votes, would give Hoover 910,500 to 589,500 for Smith, or a Hoover plurality in the entire State, including St. Louis and Kansas City, of 321,000.

Such a political miracle seems altogether irrational and illogical and unbelievable, in view of the surface indications, particularly since the Hearst poll up to this time has shown Smith slightly in the lead in this State and even today only an eye-lash in the rear.

Say that Smith carries St. Louis by 30,000 and Hoover carries Kansas City by 15,000. That would give Smith a 15,000 lead with which to sally into the rural districts of the State, where there are two-thirds of the vote.

Hoover's strength in the rural districts is plain and solid, the poll figures indicate.

Taking the 500,000 votes of St. Louis and Kansas City out, there are left about an even million voters in the so-called out-state territory, which is anti-Democratic and dry, by a slight margin.

If Hoover should poll 52 per cent of these he would get 520,000 to 480,000 for Smith, or a plurality of the out-state vote of 40,000, which would wipe out the next Smith lead of 15,000 in St. Louis and Kansas City and give Hoover the entire State by 25,000.

Coolidge carried the State by more than 75,000 and Harding's plurality over Cox was 152,000.

PARKMAN HITS AT SMITH

Gathering momentum on the second day of Republican rallies at the old Adams House, Washington st., and at Cobb's Tea Room in Scollay sq., the meetings today at noon were attended by enthusiastic throngs.

"The Republican party does not crave to compete with the vaudevillian from the sidewalks of New York," Henry Parkman, Jr., presiding at the Adams House gathering, retorted to the Missouri speech of Governor Smith.

"The Democratic nominee for the presidency," Parkman continued, "has spent most of the time of his campaign tours making 'wise cracks,' while we are paying strict attention to the serious issues of the campaign."

In his address to an audience of more than 1000, the Back Bay councillor contrasted the administration of Governor Fuller and his two Republican predecessors with that of Governor Smith.

"While New York had increased its debt by 48 per cent during the incumbency of Smith," he declared, "the net debt of Massachusetts under three Republican governors had decreased by 68 per cent."

At the Scollay sq. rendezvous a large audience was addressed by William S. Youngman, Republican nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, and Maj. Judson Hannigan.

Find Stolen Sheep in N. Y. Apartment House

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Complaints of irate apartment dwellers who saw no reason why a bleating sheep should be kept in the building, today led to the recovery of the first animal ever stolen from the Central Park flock.

Frank Hoey led the flock out bright and early today for breakfast. Half an hour later he discovered a year-old pedigreed sheep was missing.

Police, answering the complaints of neighbors in a West 153th st. building, recovered the sheep and arrested Vincent Buenrosto, 26-year-old Mexican, who was trying to induce it to drink from a pan of milk. He was held in $500 bail on a petty larceny charge.

ERECT BARRIER IN DORCHESTER DOUGHNUT WAR

Another gun in Dorchester's "Battle of Doughnuts" boomed today when a force of workmen descended on Old Colony boulevard and began erecting a chain-link wire fence across the front entrance of the Puritan Doughnut Company's plant at Tenean and Freeport sts.

The fence, more rigid and according to the Metropolitan strict Commission, supplants the flimsy "warning" fence that skirts the boulevard for 100 feet and cost one defendant $10 for ill use.

BLOCKS ENTRANCE

The new barrier is flush against the entrance of the plant on the line of the reservation that extends 50 feet from the road.

The year-old battle started when Fred Gleason of Columbia rd., Dorchester, built his plant after, the commission says, he was refused an entrance from the boulevard.

"Such an entrance forms a menace to the lives of the very persons who stop there," the commission said in a statement issued today.

"Recently two women were injured as they attempted to cross the road between scores of cars parked there.

"Mr. Gleason has been ill-advised; he has been made to believe if he bullers long enough the commission will grant him his entrance.

DANGER TOO GREAT

"The danger is too great, however, and it would establish a custom that would get beyond our control. One man was fined as a lesson. We don't mean to persecute the public, but we must protect our boulevard system."

Gleason, represented by Gen. John H. Sherburne, maintains he will seek a writ of mandamus.

Completion of the new fence means a complete shutoff from the boulevard side of the company's plant, and if business is conducted over the fence, the commission said, it would seek an injunction against the company.

TIED IN CHAIR, KILLED BY 12

Lucca, Italy, Oct. 18 (AP)—Michele Della Maggiore, a Communist convicted of assassinating two Fascisti, was executed today behind the Ponte Buggianese cemetery.

Maggiore is the first person to be condemned to death in Italy since 1899 and his execution was in the form usually reserved for military offenders or wartime traitors.

Della Maggiore was blindfolded and tied to a chair. Twelve Fascist militiamen fired and killed him outright.

"COMFORTABLE," REPORT ON JUSTICE BRALEY

Supreme Court Justice Henry K. Braley, who is ill at his Brighton home, was today reported as in comfortable condition, although not making the progress toward recovery that members of the family would like to see.

Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg, operated on at Worcester City Hospital for an abscess, is showing signs of a rapid recovery.

GIRL DEAD, FIVE INJURED, IN 3 CRASHES

Worcester, Oct. 18—The instant death of a girl, serious injuries to a man and multiple fractures and contusions sustained by two other women and two men was the toll of three automobile accidents over the past 12 hours in this city and vicinity.

Irene Charbonneau, 22, of College st. Worcester, was killed when the machine in which she was riding plunged over a 15-foot embankment at North Oxford after collision with another car.

Ruth Torrey, 23 High st., Worcester, her companion, is at the Worcester Hospital with a possible fracture of both legs, and Joseph Brogin, 26, of Stafford st., this city, is at the same institution with injuries to his leg and arm.

Daniel Silverman, 57, of Worcester, is on the danger list at the same hospital suffering from internal injuries and several fractures sustained when his automobile collided in Charlton with one driven by Mrs. Fannie E. Stockbridge of that town. Mrs. Stockbridge was cut severely by flying glass in the crash, but her five children escaped with only a severe shake-up.

Henry Munier, said to be a victim of amnesia, lost control of his car on Hamilton st. here, smashed a 25-foot strip of iron guard rail, snapped off a telephone pole and plunged over a four-foot embankment to the tracks of the Boston & Albany railroad.

Although he only displayed a few scratches, his physician believes he has been internally injured.

ACCUSED SLAYER OF HUB DIVORCEE GOES ON TRIAL

Spokane, Oct. 18 (AP)—Archie F. Much pleaded not guilty when arraigned here on a charge of murdering Mrs. Catherine Clark, Boston divorcee. Mrs. Clark was slain shortly after coming here in response to an offer of marriage from "Jim Murphy," who was represented in letters she had received as desirous of marrying in order to comply with the terms of a will and inherit a large sum of money.

The State contends that Much invented the name of "Murphy" to lure her here and then killed her for the money she brought with her, about $1600.

IDENTIFY VICTIM OF TROLLEY AS REVERE MAN

The man killed Tuesday by Boston-bound trolley from Lynn was identified today at the North Grove st. mortuary as John J. Kenny, 68, of Parkway, Revere. Identification was made by a daughter, Mary Kenney, who went to the morgue after reading the dead man's description in the newspapers.

Kenney was struck while walking the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway trestle across the Lynn marshes, on the Revere side. His body was catapulted over a fence into a creek.

SETS RECORD FOR BABY PLANES IN 780-MILE HOP

Stuttgart, Germany, Oct. 18 (AP)—Capt. Hans Wirth, Swiss airman, today set what was claimed to be a new record for baby airplanes with one passenger load. He flew from Stuttgart to Vilna, Poland, with a companion in a 70-horse-power Klemm-Daimler light airplane, a distance of 780 miles or 125 miles better than the existing record.

EIGHTEEN ARRESTED IN GAMBLING RAID

Ellis axes to batter down the door, police today raided the Garland Club, Washington st., South End arresting 18 men and seizing 16 decks of cards, poker chips and dice. All those arrested were charged with being present where gambling implements were found. The raiders were Special Officers McGinnis, Sunson, McGovern and Hollien of East Dedham st. division.

POLICE IN DRIVE ON "FALSE ALARM BOYS"

A stinging lecture, together with orders to round up the "false alarm boys," was delivered to police of Station 11, Fields Corner, at roll-call today by Capt Matthew J Dalley, following four more false alarms during the night. Fire apparatus was kept busy whirling through congested Fields Corner by these alarms together with two alarms for dump fires. Although seven arrests have been made recently the "epidemic" continues, Capt. Dalley said, and he wants "action."

THE children pictured in this advertisement are blessed with sensible mothers . . . women who know that the secret of health lies largely in serving proper food.

It is a bread that's rich in calories . . . packed with nourishment . . . and yet widely famous for its flavor.

White Rose produces muscle as well as energy. It is rich in protein . . . calcium . . . phosphates.

It puts solid flesh on growing little bodies . . . hardens teeth . . . builds strong, sturdy bones and active minds.

Every loaf is made from carefully selected ingredients. Highest quality flour. Rich, wholesome milk. Pure cane sugar.

Now, Madam, a word of warning. At times you may be urged to accept some ordinary bread. Think, please, before you do.

Let your grocer distinctly understand that no bread but White Rose will satisfy. Do not trust your family's precious health to ordinary, untried brands.

"GIMME ANOTHER SLICE," says Ed Martin of Boston to his sister Mary. They're having a fine rainy afternoon tea party. Pretty handsome youngsters, aren't they? Their mother says there's nothing to equal White Rose for building active growing children.

HAZEL HAYMAN OF NEW BEDFORD wields a mighty big shovel for a little girl. Hazel gets White Rose Bread, for its rich energy value, three times every day.

SIX HUNDRED OF YOUNGER SET ATTEND COUNTRY CLUB DANCE

Dr. and Mrs. Clymer Entertain Daughter, Susan; Mrs. Walter G. Chase Gives Party to Judith Chase.

IF IT HAD NOT BEEN FOR THE AUTUMN LEAVES THAT helped to decorate the Country Club interior last evening, one might have entirely forgotten that summer is past. Looking about among the dancers it seemed surprising that clothes were formal, that white flannels and light chiffon things were absent, for it was a soft summer night in October. The long French windows were thrown wide and flutters of gowns were always visible moving gracefully over the lawns. A gathering of 600 members of the young set shared in the budding of Miss Susan Clymer and Miss Judith Chase, who were given a dance by Dr. and Mrs. George Clymer, and Mrs. Walter G. Chase. Miss Susan Clymer was very effective in a white taffeta finished with rhinestones and caught in the dashing graceful bows that always spell "French." Miss Judith Chase was dainty and graceful in a soft, sweeping, velvet-bodiced frock of peach with a float of tulle for a skirt.

MRS. CHASE WAS SMART IN A BLACK VELVET OF INTERESTING lines. Mrs. Clymer wore a becoming gown, pansy in color, velvet in substance. It was a very gay party, as lovely to see as debutante parties always are and always will be.

THE USHERS FOR THE CHASE-CLYMER FUNCTION WERE headed by brothers of the principals, Mr. Shubrick Clymer and Mr. Charles Chase. The usual dinner for the ushers preceded the dance and the usher list contained the names of Nathaniel Whittier, Leslie Cheek, Donald Scott, Stuyvesant Barry, Lorenz Muther, Lamar Soutter, John McGinly, Francis Shine, Robert Canfield, Craig Wylie, David Paschall, Henry Stebbins, Robert Anderson, Wellington Wells, Charles Mason, James Carter, Lindsey Ware and Clarence Galfton.

A NUMBER OF DINNERS WERE GIVEN EARLIER IN THE evening headed by a group of 40, who were guests of Dr. and Mrs. George Clymer, who entertained at the Country Club.

BOSTON IS WELL REPRESENTED AT WHITE SULPHUR Springs in Virginia. With winter in the offing, very much in the offing to judge from present temperatures, the South attracts many not quite ready to face the rigors of New England winters. Scheduled for the Greenbrier are Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Watters, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Gale, Mr. and Mrs. William Evatt, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McElwain, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Howes, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Brown.

ANOTHER BIT OF NEWS MENTIONS THE QUANTITY of entertaining that is being done for Miss Betty Randolph Harrison Davis, whose engagement was announced some time last month to George Edward Darling, decidedly a Bostonian, although his mother, Mrs. Edward Crosby Darling, is of Richmond, Va.

ANOTHER BENEFIT IS SCHEDULED. This time it is of interest to the very youngest set chiefly but to nearly everyone generally. Capt. Harwood Steele, M. C., is to talk Saturday morning, October 27, in the Hotel Statler ballroom, on his interesting experiences while visiting detachments of Northwest Mounted Police and as historian of the Canadian Arctic expedition of 1925, when he reached within 11 degrees of the pole. During his stay in Boston Capt. Steele will be the guest of Capt. and Mrs. Charles A. Rheault of Westwood.

MRS. MORTON P. PRINCE IS DIRECTING THE BENEFIT AND her assistants are: Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Miss Mary Curtis, Mrs. Henry H. Fay, Mrs. Arnold W. Hunnewell, Mrs. Maurice M. Osborne, Mrs. Charles Russell Peck, Mrs. John Suter and Mrs. George Scott Winslow. Among those who have given their patronage are Mrs. Stoughton Bell, Mrs. Frederick H. Briggs, Mrs. T. Hassall Brown, Mrs. William A. Burnham, Mrs. Theophilus P. Chandler, Mrs. Louis Curtis, Mrs. Cora C. Ely and Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno.

AN INTERESTINGLY DIVERSIFIED THRONG FLOODED THE Statler ballroom for the 50th anniversary dinner S. P. C. C., Junior Division. The philanthropic motive for the affair attracted many and the Junior League girls, who ushered, no doubt attracted many more. Dinners within the dinner were innumerable. Hostesses who lend their activity as well as their social interest to these organizations that do so much civic and human good attended the banquet in large numbers.

TABLES WERE RESERVED FOR VARYIVNG SIZED PARTIES by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seabury, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Read, Mr. and Mrs. George S. West and Mr. and Mrs. Max O. Whiting. The ushers, who wore what their hearts dictated and their mirrors told them was most fetching, were: Mary Otis, Marian Upton, Mrs. Baker, Susan Wigglesworth, Julia Paine, Anna Dickson, Lucille Defren, Katherine Hecht, Mildred Ellis, Winifred Thorndike, Jane Megrew, Eleanor Clarke, Betty Thomas, Rosamond Jackson, Mrs. Gordon Dewart, Louise Waterman, Priscilla Waterman, Harriet White, Kathleen Turnbull, Frances Sturgis and Isabel Grandin.

MRS. CURTIS GUILD WORE A SCARF OF SABLE ABOUT THE the shoulders of her black velvet and flesh georgette evening gown. Miss Susan Wigglesworth was prettily blonde in cerise chiffon glistening with crystal. A deep rose ensemble made slight Miss Emma Dickerman even slimmer, although the self-colored flowers that were caught down the bodice and the full draping of her skirt emphasized her grace.

Eleanor Clark, who was among the attractive ushers at the S. P. C. C. banquet and celebration at Hotel Statler in honor of its fiftieth anniversary. Miss Clark, as were many of the ushers, is a Junior Leaguer.

MAY ASK FOLEY AID AGAINST HOSPITAL

Nichols, in which they disclaimed responsibility for the death of the child and enclosed the report of Medical Examiner Leary.

HE SAW DOWLING

"The death of my child was nothing short of murder," McMahon declared, "despite what the trustees of the hospital or Supt. Dowling or anyone else says.

"Before I get through I may call on Dist.-Atty. Foley and I am also going to see the mayor.

"Five minutes before I left the hospital after taking my child there, Supt. Dowling assured me that Dr. William T. Haley, an expert in such matters, would operate on my child.

"I have no complaint to make on the operation itself by Dr. Dinand. I believe the operation was properly carried out but I am satisfied my child was neglected after the operation and bled to death as I previously stated.

BLAMES NEGLECT.

"A physician who saw my child after she was dead told me there were not two tablespoonfuls of blood in her body.

"My child had been at Nantasket all summer and was in fine condition when she came up from the beach. She was well tanned. She was in swimming only three weeks ago.

"I have every intention of pushing these charges to the end, as I am satisfied my child died as a result of neglect."

Following are excerpts form letters received by Councillor McMahan:

SAMUEL MALINE, attorney, State st.—Possibly I can give you some information concerning conditions at the City Hospital. I had occasion some time ago to call this matter to their attention in behalf of a client whose child was bitten by vermin. There are witnesses to substaniate this.

A. E. PURTNOY of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury—I sympathize with you and believe your charges of neglect at Boston City Hospital are true. I also lost a child recently and believe she was neglected and that was the cause of her death.

LUCY ORAM, Dennis st., Roxbury: I wish to verify your statement regarding vermin in the City Hospital.

MRS. M. JOHNSON, Elmore st., Roxbury: I lost a healthy boy of five from the same operation as your child died from. I did not receive a satisfactory answer as to the manner in which he died. It was at least five days before I could get a death certificate. At 10:15 a. m. I left him there and at 5:30 p. m. on the same day I got word he was dead.

MRS. W. K. GOODRICH Blossom st., Lexington: About six years ago I had a niece in that vermin hole called Boston City Hospital. I went there to see her and she had been crying for an hour for a drink of water. Her bed was alive.

In addition Councillor McMahon said that he would call Mrs. Alice Tompkins of West Dedham st., South End, who wheeled a baby carriage to City Hall in order to see him, Mrs. Sarah Coulter of Vernon st., Roxbury, who told him that her child bled to death at City Hospital, and Mrs. Thomas Rogers of Tremont st., South End, who had a specific complaint.

Princeton Students, Barred from Voting, Open Trade War

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP)—War on Princeton merchants was threatened today by 2000 undergraduates of Princeton University who have been barred from voting in the coming elections on the ground they are not residents of the city.

"Recrimination for discrimination. No vote—no trade," read posters distributed about the campus after the election board refused to register 190 undergraduates. Graduate and seminary students were allowed to register.

"It is unfair to exclude student residents in Princeton from the privilege of voting when that privilege has been given them for at least 40 years," President Hibben said. "There is evidently prejudice or hostility, rather than any basis of reason."

G. A. R. Post Founder Dead

PLAN TO TAKE BUSINESS OUT OF POLITICS

A plea for the separation of economic and industrial problems from the sphere of politics was voiced today by Fred I. Kent, president of the American Institute of Banking at the closing session of the 13th annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts in the Copley Plaza.

"There is clearly a need," Kent declared, "for the establishment of some means to intelligently, and with some proper authority, guide legislators in their acts which have to do with industrial regulation.

An advisory commission composed of representative business men covering all the principal activities of the country, and non-partisan, was suggested by the speaker as a means to effect greater cohesion of all industries, their more intelligent regulation by Government, and direct consideration of industrial production and consumption.

GIRL'S EYE TRAPS 2 IN AUTO LICENSE FRAUD

A girl clerk's discerning eye cost two East Boston men $150 each in Lynn court today after one is alleged to have taken an automobile license test for the other. Amation Goglia, 30, of Castle st. wanted the license but Salvatore Di Palma, 21, of Chelsea st., admitted taking Goglia's test.

When the test was completed Di Palma went to Miss Helen Burke, license clerk, for the paper. She thought he appeared a bit youthful for the stated age of 30. To an inspector Di Palma admitted the deception.

TABLES PRAYER BOOK REVISION

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—A resolution to stamp the church temperance society as a body without official standing in the church was introduced before the Episcopal church general convention today by the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, D. C., and referred to the committee on social service.

A short time ago the association published a report of a survey made among Episcopal clergy tending to show that many were opposed to the 18th amendment. The society at the time disclaimed any official connection with the church.

Action on the proposal to eliminate the 39 articles of faith from the Episcopal book of common prayer was indefinitely postponed by the bishops without a record vote.

The suggested elimination of the articles was considered one of the most important matters before the convention and found two schools of thought within the church sharply divided.

Today's action was taken on motion of Bishop Charles L. Slattery of Massachusetts, chairman of the prayer book committee. There was no debate.

QUEEN MARIE IS FLU VICTIM

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 18 (AP)—Three medical professors were rushed to the royal residence at Balcik on the Black Sea today to attend Queen Marie, who is confined to her room there by an attack of influenza.

It was stated at noon that the Queen's condition had shown no improvement.

Several times recently the Queen has been ill. Last April, after a voyage to Cyprus for her health, she went to Balcik to recover from an attack of lumbago and later returned to Bucharest.

There she had a painful attack of rheumatic neuralgia and was confined to her bedroom for five days. She was able to resume her normal activities and audience on June 1 and at the end of July went to Jugoslavia to visit King Alexander and Queen Marie, her daughter, for a fortnight.

DRY, JAILED, IN FEAR FOR LIFE

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 18 (INS)—Fear that bootleggers imprisoned at the Indiana State Farm will do bodily injury to Edward S. Schumaker, Indiana Anti-Saloon League superintendent, while he is serving 60 days for contempt of the State Supreme Court was expressed by his friends today.

Lack of money to carry on his fight and uncertainty whether the United States Supreme Court would accept his appeal forced Schumaker to abandon his long struggle to escape the State Farm sentence and a $250 fine.

SUMMERFIELD WELCOMED

Another link in the Summerfield furniture chain opened its doors to the Somerville public today with speeches and an official welcome from Mayor Leon M. Conwell, dedicating the two and a half-story brick building at No. 212 Elm st., in Davis sq.

Hailing its coming, as another step in the advancement of Somerville, Mayor Conwell extolled the business possibilities for the new Summerfield unit, the first of a series planned in an extensive campaign by the New England furniture house.

Covering 25,000 square feet of daylight space, it is the largest store in Somerville and one of the most modern in New England, Harry Elstein, publicity director of Summerfields, stated.

Company officials are searching for similar locations in other municipalities.

Before the exercises began a crowd formed outside the building waiting patiently to inspect the new quarters and receive souvenirs.

At nine o'clock, William Bachrach, executive director of Summerfields, in the absence of its president, Benjamin Stern, who is ill, told the crowd just such efficient service as has characterized the furniture institution in the past, would prevail in the future for the Somerville unit.

Harold C. Ryan, for years buyer at the main store, is to manage the Somerville unit. The same terms of credit will prevail as will the home budget.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN SLOW ON ALIMONY

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (INS)—Francis X. Bushman, the moving picture actor, was under $10,000 bond today on charges of his wife that he is $60,000 in arrears on alimony payments. Under the divorce decree of July 28, 1918, Mrs. Bushman was to receive $40,000 and $4000 a year for the support of their children.

12 DEGREE DROP BRINGS RELIEF

After threatening to establish another weather record today, the temperature, driven by the chill of a shifting wind, collapsed and nose-dived 12 degrees, ending the October sweltering session.

At noon it was 78 degrees above. At 1 p. m., it was 66 and the prospects for tonight are even lower on the scale, with a possibility of rain.

First 'Canned' Voice Will Be Put on Air Saturday

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Radio listeners may hear the first human voice ever recorded on a phonographic instrument at ceremonies Saturday night at West Orange, N. J., when Thomas A. Edison will receive a medal awarded him by Congress.

The British charge d'affaires, Ronald I. Campbell, is to return formally to Mr. Edison, on behalf of the British government, the first phonograph and the first record produced by the famous inventor.

After a brief response to addresses by President Coolidge, delivered from Washington over the radio, by Secretary Mellon, who will present the medal, and others, an attempt will be made to broadcast a record from the machine.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

Look at your TONGUE every morning!

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

BERNARD SHAW UNMASKS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

CALLS PACIFIST ORATORY HUMBUG AT WORST

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

Copyright, 1928, in U. S. A., by New York American, Inc. Reproduction prohibited in whole or in part. World rights reserved by Reuter's.

London, Oct. 18—When my presence at Geneva during the annual assembly of the League of Nations was mentioned in the press, I received several letters, of which the following is a fair sample:

> I cannot help being rather surprised and shocked to read that you "sit on the bench of the mockers and hypocrites." In this country every little child knows that the League of Nations is only a bluff and nothing but an instrument for the policy of the allied forces.

PIOUS SPEECHES

> I really am at a loss to understand why you don't feel your responsibility as a mental tutor of the world, when taking such a step as taking part in the comedy of Geneva, which is a tragedy for every country that does not find mercy in the eyes of the world's high finance.

This letter is not a statesman's utterance. It is a crude expression of the popular impatience which sees no more in the League than an instrument for the instantaneous extirpation of war, and is ready to throw it on the scrap heap the moment it becomes clear that no such operation is possible, and that the big powers have not, and never had, any intention of relinquishing any jot of their sovereignty, or depending on any sort of strength and security other than military.

Roughly and generally it is a fact that the pacifist oratory at the assembly is Christmas card platitude at best and humbug at worst. The permanent departments of the league have to fight hard to defeat the frequent attempts to sabotage it by the big powers through their deciduous members. Whilst I was there the press was keeping the public amused, not to say gulled, by gossip about the assembly meetings, at which nothing happens but pious speeches which might have been delivered 50 years ago.

It was so impossible to listen to them, or to keep awake during the subsequent inevitable translations, that the audience had to be kept in its place by a regulation, physically enforced, that no visitor should be allowed to leave the hall except during the five minutes set apart for that purpose between speech and translation.

Fortunately, the young ladies of the secretariat, who have plenty of dramatic sense, arrange the platform in such a way that the president, the speakers, and the bureau, are packed low down before a broad tableau curtain which, being in three pieces, provides most effective dramatic entrances right and left of the center.

When a young lady secretary has a new dress, or for any other reason feels that she is looking her best, she waits until the speaker—possibly a Chinese gentleman carefully plodding through a paper written in his best French—has reduced half the public galleries to distraction and the other half to stertorous slumber, when she suddenly but gracefully snatches the curtains apart and stands revealed, a captivating mannequin, whilst she pretends to look around with a pair of sparkling eyes for her principal on the bureau.

IN GRIP OF SIR ERIC

The effect is electric; the audience wakes up and passes with a flash from listless desperation to tense fascination, to the great encouragement of the speaker, who, with his back to the vision beautiful, fondly believes that he has got them at last.

But for these vamping episodes, and such occasional sensations as the possibility of a great platform artist like M. Briand intervening and shaking the league to its foundations by getting his feet on the ground with an allusion to real things as they really are, nobody would face the task of acting as spectator.

Whilst this was going on at the Victoria Hotel, and being daily foisted on the public as the real thing, a battle royal, on the upshot of which the very existence of the league as an effective international organ depended, was raging at the other side of the lake in the National Hotel, between Sir Eric Drummond, the permanent British secretary-general appointed by the Treaty of Versailles and Locker Lampson, the Assembly member sent for the month by Baldwin's cabinet.

These deciduous members, who arrived mostly in scandalous ignorance of the obligations contracted by their governments through their instructed representatives on the permanent governing bodies of the League, and conceived themselves to be national advocates (not to say Nationalist spies) in the Internationalist camp, naturally expect to find themselves supported by their distinguished fellow countrymen on the staffs. They are rudely undeceived the moment they begin their crude attempts at sabotage.

The British jingo imperialist finds himself writhing in the grip of Sir Eric Drummond: The French Poincarist-Militarist takes the full count in the first round from M. Albert Thomas.

This year Locker Lampson, a novice in Geneva like myself, had to deal with the league's budget and tried starvation tactics. Pleading the poverty of England, he opposed every increase in the necessarily growing estimates. The difference at stake to his country was about $20,000!

When he was informed that the British representative on the government body of the international labor office had, with full instructions from his government, voted for the increases, he desperately declared that the British government could not be bound by the action of their own instructed representative at the international labor office.

He was backed up by the countries who were losing no opportunity to rescue the league to impotence, and, in particular, to cripple the labor office. How could a gentleman and a Conservative tolerate a labor office?

In the end, Sir Eric, Thomas, and the league won with a completeness that made their victory a disgrace to the vanquished; but the public outside Geneva, gaping at the assembly camouflage, missed it all. Judging the league, like any vituperative correspondent of the assembly, they see nothing in it but a futile hypocrisy, and cannot understand why they should be taxed to support it.

This is the first of a series of four articles by Shaw on the League of Nations. The second will appear in an early issue, probably tomorrow.

A Substitute for Dieting

PARTICULAR people do frown on those who "pick and choose" at the table. A "diet" is often embarrassing and always a hardship. And nine times out of ten it is unnecessary:

Try this simple experiment; see if that "indigestion" doesn't disappear from the very hour you first take Pape's Diapepsin. To restore good digestion just eliminate excess acid. A tablet of "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapepsin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders. You may have decided that nothing could give you a "strong" stomach; just make the diapepsin test!

Pape's DIAPEPSIN

The Face stared back

Fear, incredulity, weakness—and a savage irritability with life! All that Tomlinson saw on his face when he stared at it in the mirror. And his face was a portrait of the man he was at 35!

He knew, of course, that poisons accumulating in sluggish intestines ruin dispositions and undermine health. Yet he'd been so unsuccessful with ordinary laxatives; slow-acting health foods—cathartics that wracked the system . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

It's just like a bit of delicious mint chewing gum. You don't swallow it hastily, like other laxatives—you chew it!

The chewing releases Feen-a-mint's wonderful cleansing principle so gradually, so naturally that it acts with unbelievable gentleness—yet sweeps out the clogging poisons from your whole system. In 3 to 4 hours (or by morning, if you take it at bedtime) it freshens you from top to toe!

It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't disturb digestion. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's today.

Feen-a-mint

Chew it like Gum

Ten Candidates in One

The Republican Party presents in a candidate who is at once an administrator, and a business man, an engineer and a scientist, a statesman, and an authority on conservation and aviation, manufacturing and merchandising, agriculture and foreign trade, domestic commerce and international affairs.

His grasp on transportation problems is the knowledge gained as a shipper of more tonnage by land and sea, than any man of his time. He has bought and sold and distributed more grain and meat than entire nations annually consume.

The yield, the soil, the traffic facilities of every grange and ranch section are at the tips of his mental fingers. He knows farm overheads and marketing costs. He knows elevator charges and dockage percentages. He knows the competitive districts and crops of the universe—the dumping grounds and the fighting grounds of export.

He called the first employment conference in history, when 5,000,000 men were unemployed and he organized them back into jobs.

For eight years he has dealt daily with the progress of electrical development and water power.

He has studied Mississippi flood control on breaking levee banks, with his brain in overalls, not clad in statistics and second-handed analysis.

He has waged relentless campaigns against industrial negligence, mining risks, and hazardous machinery.

He has directed the Bureau of Standards, an experimental laboratory in which millions are daily saved for commerce—a Federal hospital that prescribes cures for the thousand wasting diseases of business—a monster test tube, ceaselessly changing rubbish to dividends, and waste piles to revenues.

He has guided the course of commercial aviation.

He has been commander-in-chief in the development of our radio forces, and road-breaker for the wizardries of wireless transmission.

He has shown merchandising how to make two profits where one grew before by standardizing and simplifying production, reducing assortments to essentials, and substituting the exactitudes of science for the hits and misses of inefficiency. He has brought cheaper production to the factory and cheaper prices to the home.

He has measured the reckless decimation of our timberlands and charted the conservation of oil and mineral resources in practical terms.

He has conducted researches in dairying, stock-breeding, fertilization—and taught young industries the fundamental laws of management and marketing.

He has smashed rubber monopoly and kept the maintenance cost of automobiles within average purse reach.

He has found outlets for our goods from Dan to Beersheba, and furnished American commerce with a Bureau of Information that is saving millions once lost through ignorance of alien codes and trade practices.

A vote for Herbert Hoover is a vote for experience, not experiment—a vote for the continuance of an administration which has led America to new peaks of achievement—a vote for the party which has wiped soup-kitchens, strikes and bread lines from the land—a vote for stability, and for efficient government—a vote for continued high wages, busy mills, active factories—for the protection of American investment, American labor, and American homes from the invasion of pauper labor and product—from quack legislation—from the corner saloon. And from a half-hearted tariff.

The continuance of the Republican Party in office means the continuance of prosperity—means the greatest living American in the White House.

If Ruptured Try This Free

Apply It to Any Rupture, Old or Recent, Large or Small and You Are on the Road That Has Convinced Thousands

Sent Free to Prove This

Every ruptured man, woman or child, should write at once to W. S. Rice, 582L Main St., Adams, N. Y., for a free trial of his wonderful stimulating application. Just put it on the rupture and the muscles begin to tighten; they begin to bind together so that the opening closes naturally and the need of a support or truss or appliance is then done away with. Don't neglect to send for this free trial. Even if your rupture doesn't bother you, what is the use of wearing supports all your life? Why suffer this nuisance? Why run the risk of gangrene and such dangers from a small and innocent little rupture, the kind that has thrown thousands on the operating table? A host of men and women are daily running such risk just because their ruptures do not hurt nor prevent them from getting around. Write at once for this free trial, as it is certainly a wonderful thing and has aided in the cure of ruptures that were as big as a man's two fists. Try and write at once, using the coupon below.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BUSINESS is just business until man seasons it with the salt of new ideas. Then it obviously becomes something else . . . an institution. Today we open a new store in Davis Sq., Somerville . . . the largest furniture store in Somerville . . . the tenth store in the affiliated Summerfield chain. Years ago we began in a small way . . . but in a different way. We initiated the idea of providing good furniture within the means of the average person's pocketbook . . . and like the Christmas magazines that come out in November . . . we have always managed to keep a step ahead.

WHAT happened is history. Sales grew like Jack's Beanstalk. There wasn't time enough in the world for one store to make two reputations . . . so we concentrated on the single idea of earning confidence and keeping it. Today . . . the fruits of this policy hang right out on our "branches" where anyone can step up and see the. Summerfield's has changed the furniture business plea "my kingdom for a customer" into a spot which is now the customer's kingdom. Here the customer is boss. We're only servants to the many who cross our "welcome" mat at the door . . . "As much for your dollar as I expect for mine" . . . that is the spirit of SUMMERFIELD'S.

TIGER LOVE by EUSTACE HALE BALL

An Amazing Story of a Dancer

CHAPTER 9

HEALTH had returned to Roala with the surge of youth and warmer, sunnier weather.

With her strange dreams still holding her in mystic enchantment once more she took the long dreary path of her accustomed duties. Old Pairim Gad, his supply of rupees exhausted and his temper ragged from his steady debaucheries in the cheap taverns which he had frequented during her illness, demanded that more money be obtained.

So, they went forth to the market place on the first day on which her strength permitted.

She was more slender, now, than before the fever. Her sweet face evidenced the struggle through which she had passed, with tragic shadows beneath the long-lashed eyes. And yet, with the scarlet paint of the professional dancer upon her lips, and garbed in a gorgeous new silken scarf, with tinkling anklets and great strings of beads about her neck, she began to attract much new attention.

Nigili strummed the long drum with her thick old fingers and chuckled with delight as the young men crowded about them.

And as fat old tradesmen and bearded grandsires, jewelled and white bearded, drew near the corner of the mart which they had selected, tossing silver coins to the girl even as she stepped the mazes of the dance which Pairim had taught her in the forest, that not too worthy patron of the arts missed more than one melodious note on his long reed pipe as he smiled with new-born hope.

"Fortune is coming our way again, wife," he muttered, as they passed through the eager throng now surging about the maiden.

Indeed, collections grew greater with each succeeding dance.

"Thou art wise, after all, Pairim," admitted his wife, harshly. "I did not know so much wit had been left in that wine-soaked head of ... ne."

And she slipped a portion of the money which had been dropped into the ancient cup which served as collection box into a secret pocket of her dress.

By twilight they had amassed a greater sum than at any time before the eventful experience with the white hunter of the tiger.

"Tomorrow we shall do even better," confided Pairim. "A friend has told me that some white traders have come to the town to collect shawls and silks. We shall capture them in the snare of our daughter's beauty."

"But," objected Nigili, "didst thou not tell me it would be dangerous for white men to behold our pretty dancer?"

The old man laughed and licked his lips.

"These men are not Sahibs. They are low fellows, who haggle over prices and drink in the taverns with the rest of us. They come for bargains and they return cheated—but they cheat their masters in return. They are not dangerous. Our daughter knows too well her value to waste it upon them. What we gain from them is fair profit with no risk."

Nigili gave him an admiring glance for the first time in many days.

"Thou are not such a fool as thy face would warrant," she answered. It was a compliment, indeed, from the old shrew. "But after all our troubles do not fail to guard our jewel well, for men such as they are not above theft, nor are they

THRONG VIEWS STLYE SHOW

Tweeds, velvets, ensembles.

These three words spell fashion wisdom this season as demonstrated at the fabric fashion show at Jordan Marsh Co. every afternoon this week on the ninth floor, annex.

This is an unusual and important fashion show to every woman—unusual because it parades lovely models within reach of every woman's purse; important because it shows what is what in fabrics and accessories.

How to wear clothes, what to choose for the new two-tone ensembles and just how to make them or have them made—this is the big idea.

And the practical point of the show is the fact that Jordan's teach dressmaking, or cut and pin your garment, or provide a French modiste who will make any garment to your individual style.

A gown entirely pinned upon its lovely wearer was shown by Mrs. Edith Hatch, fabric stylist, and created delighted comment when a packed auditorium noted that the fit was perfect and the pins that held the seams together were placed on the inside of the garment so that the effect was a perfectly smooth satin frock of piquant charm.

Mrs. Hatch explained that the "cut and pin" service inaugurated a year ago has taken the itch out of stitching and made it possible for every woman who can follow the pinned lines to make her own dress in true Parisian mode.

A new service is now available for the woman who prefers to let a clever modiste do the job. On Mondays, a famous French modiste from Paris, who is in Boston to be near her daughter, will design and help plan individual costumes and make them during the week. She uses no patterns and needs only a picture or drawing of your idea to fashion the frock of your dreams.

And the final service is dressmaking lessons, 12 essential ones for $5.

Every woman can now have lovely gowns and coats.

HICKMAN READY TO DIE

ELECTRICS ON NARROW GAUGE

Electrification of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn railroad begins tomorrow when the first electric train will go into service on the main line between Boston and Lynn.

Without ceremonies of any kind the first all-electric train to be run regularly on the famous "Narrow Gauge" will make its initial trip in the morning, continuing on schedule thereafter and cutting down the running time between the two terminals 15 minutes.

From day to day the company plans to add more trains as they are available until the [illegible] line and branches are fully electrified, after which express service will go into effect between Boston and Lynn during the rush hours.

The first train was sent over the lines for the benefit of officials and newspaper representatives, and proved to be a tremendous step forward in methods of transportation.

The train is made up of three cars painted green with cream trimmings, well ventilated and brightly lighted, with of course an entire absence of smoke, cinders and fumes.

From the East Boston terminus the train made Orient Heights in three minutes; in another minute it was at Beachmont and a minute and a half later stopped at Crescent Beach. Eleven minutes later it reached Point of Pines and six minutes thereafter rolled into Lynn.

All cars are equipped with safety devices and any number up to eight can be coupled together in one train. It is planned to run six-car trains during rush hours and three-car trains at other times.

Man in Auto Drops 20 Feet as He Misses S-Curve on Bridge

Missing the turn on S-curve railroad bridge in Washington st., Braintree, early today, Mark A. Redallion of Chelsea crashed his automobile through the bridge fence, dropped 20 feet and brought up against a tree with no damage to car or himself.

If the machine had not become snubbed against the tree, however, it would have shot over the terrace on which it landed, and gone down 30 feet more to the railroad tracks.

"FOX" SEES SALVATION AT END OF NOOSE

By CARL MORITZ
International News Service Correspondent

San Quentin Prison, Oct. 18—William Edward Hickman sat in the "death cell" today convinced his march to the gallows 24 hours hence is his only path to salvation.

His attorney, Jerome Walsh, prepared to make a last-minute attempt to save the so-styled "Fox" from that "salvation."

Warden Holohan will be presented with an affidavit signed by Dr. [illegible] M. McBall, professor at the University of California, declaring the man is incurably insane and will die within two years if spared from the noose.

On the strength of this affidavit Walsh will ask Holohan to stay the execution until a sanity board can examine the youth.

The Two Great Jacks Look Over the House That Jack's Jack Built

ONCE OPPONENTS—NOW PALS
It's a funny world after all. Pictured above is Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey, with the former pointing out to the ex-champion his new home now being erected in Newton.

FORMER AND FUTURE CHAMPION

CARES OF THE RING FORGOTTEN
Real estate was the topic of discussion when the two Jacks met at Sharkey's new home. Dempsey has done pretty well as a real estate operator and took time out to look over Sharkey's new abode. Sharkey is shown shaking hands with Dempsey through one of the bay windows of the Newton home.

MAYOR THROWS OPEN GATES OF PARK

By JOE CASHMAN

The drive which the Boston Evening American started a year ago for the erection of a municipal stadium for Boston school athletes came to a successful conclusion this afternoon when the Fens playgrounds, situated on Audubon rd., Back Bay, was officially dedicated.

Mayor Nichols and member of the park commission threw open the gates. Then, after a lot of oratory had been spilled, the park was turned over to the schoolboys for whom it was built, and Mechanic Arts and Charlestown high schools christened it with a football game

At the request of Mayor Nichols, Myles McSweeney, assistant sports editor of the Boston Evening American, delivered one of dedicatory addresses.

Modern in every respect is this stadium with its beautiful field house, erected at a cost of $40,000, its baseball diamonds, football gridirons, tracks and spacious bleachers, and when all work is completed the Hub schoolboys will have one of the finest plants of its kind in the country and something they have badly needed for years.

The field house is characterized by park department officials as the last word in such construction. Of striking type of arch lecture, it is in complete harmony with the surroundings, that is all except of land which forms the entrance to the park system.

The building is 75 feet long and 35 feet wide and consists of a basement, mostly out of the ground, and a main floor about nine feet above the grade of the playing field of seven acres.

The principal rooms on the main floor are a boys' locker room with a capacity of 140 steel lockers, with toilet room, shower and rubbing rooms adjoining; also a girls' locker room and similar rooms on the other side.

In the basement under the boys' locker room there is a lobby 50 feet long by 14 wide which will serve as an entrance for the boys and for a place to put on skates in winter.

The exterior of the building is faced with pre-cast stone, and the interior is lined with brick. All exposed surfaces of wall and partitions in the interior are of special mottled buff colored semi-glazed brick.

The floors are of concrete and the only wood in the building are the window frames, sashes and doors and the cases in the checkroom. All other material is of metal, brick and concrete.

Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and Park Commissioner William P. Long deserve most of the credit for the Hub being able to boast of this modern athletic plant today.

Both agreed that something should be done at once when the Boston Evening American called to their attention the need of a suitable athletic field for school pupils and they cooperated with this paper in the drive for building funds with the result that the park is ready just one year after the drive started.

Councilor John Dowd of Roxbury is also deserving of much praise for the part he took in the fight. He introduced an order for an appropriation for the work and succeeded in having it passed.

Until now, the schoolboys have had to travel out to Brighton or to some point equally distant from the city schools to practice and they had to pay their games on one of the local ball parks.

The injustice of this system was plain years ago and demands were made for a municipal stadium but until the Boston Evening American decided to wage a campaign for one, nothing ever came of these demands.

Quigley to Umpire for Japanese Teams

St. Mary's Kan., Oct. 18—E. C. Quigley, former director of St. Mary's College here and a nationally prominent football, baseball and basketball official, has left for Japan where he will umpire a series of baseball games between two picked Japanese college teams.

Quigley will also conduct a coaching school for officials in baseball, football and basketball, which have become very popular in Japan recently. He will return in the United States December 12.

Moriarty Resigns as Tiger Leader

Detroit, Oct. 18—George Moriarty, manager of the Detroit Tigers handed in his resignation today. His two year contract expired this year and Stanley Harris, former manager of the Washington Senators will take Moriarty's place as leader of the Tigers. Harris himself was forced to resign as manager of the Senators which barth will be filled next year by the beloved Walter Johnson.

DILBOY SHOW ON TONIGHT

All attendance records are expected to be shattered tonight, when Dilboy Post will stage another amateur boxing tournament at Knights of Columbus hall, Highland ave., Somerville. Classes to be competed are, in addition to the 125-pound class for novices, the following open classes, 112, 126, 147 and 160 pounds.

The 160-pound class, which is being featured, has undoubtedly attracted the greatest number of entries, including such boys as Paul Zeramba, South Boston, Terry Mitchell, Boston; John Callahan, Roxbury, and Jim Beaudreau, Quincy.

The 125-pound novice, as well as the 147-pound classes finds many classy boxers entered.

All other classes are well filled and a large number of bouts will be necessary to decide the various winners. The first bout will go on at 8 o'clock sharp.

New Hampshire Lads Willing to Help Army Eleven

After going from L. Percy Hammond, president of Children's school to the recruiting officer, this letter finally reached Capt. W. H. Wells, publicity officer at West Point.

"Dear Soldiers, Do you want any boys to help you if you do say so. If you will pay our fair we will come to you. We are good and strong. I am 9 years old and my nephew is 7 years old, so if you want us to come write and tell us. From Master James Meridon Whitmore, Derry, N. H. 37 East Broadway.

Jack Sharkey Is Next Champion—Dempsey

By JACK DEMPSEY,

Ting-a-ling!

It was the telephone in my suite at the Copley-Plaza.

"Hello, Jack. I'm on my way over to see you and take you for an auto ride."

It was Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight contender, on the other end of the wire.

Sharkey and myself enraged into one of the most bitter heavyweight battles in the history of the ring at the Yankee Stadium a year ago last summer. In the first round, Sharkey almost knocked me out. I considered myself fortunate to weather the storm and come back to win.

I found Sharkey a worthy foe, while he was always loud in his praise of my fighting ability.

After the bout, some of the newspapers claimed I fouled Sharkey. This charge was unfounded. I was pleased when Jack refused to add his voice to the foul claim. He proved he wasn't a squawker and I liked him for it.

Johnny Buckley tells me Sharkey has always been one of my admirers. When he started boxing, he took the name Jack after me. Buckley tells me that Sharkey never dreamed that he would meet his idol in a bout to decide who would battle Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world.

COULD DEFEAT TUNNEY

I regret Sharkey didn't get the Tunney bout this year instead of Heeney. Ever since I fought Jack in New York, I have felt he could defeat Gene. Sharkey has the kind of boxing style that would enable him to outscore the champion.

If you have seen Tunney box, you know he holds his right hand low. Boxing in this way Sharkey, blessed with a deadly left hook, would hit him easily. If Gene tried to change his style, he would be awkward and could not hope to win.

A heaving, bobbing fighter like Sharkey would also be a difficult target for Tunney to hit. Jack can also punch himself as he proved when he met me.

Sharkey is only 26 years of age and if he intends to business he will be the next heavyweight champion of the world. He has the natural class and only needs experience to put him on top of the heap.

Since our bout in New York, Sharkey has visited me several times when we both have been New York. I have enjoyed explaining to him how I get my great punching power. I am blessed with big hands and have never got them hurt. I also get every ounce of power in my body behind my blows. I believe a fighter should give the public everything he has while he is in the ring.

Sharkey popped in on me shortly after his telephone call. I was soon seated beside him in one of his high-powered cars.

Jack, like myself, likes to live and spend money, and one of his hobbies, I am told, is automobiles. He has three of them.

Jack drove me to the City Hall, where I met Mayor Nichols; took me to the State House, where I greeted Boxing Commissioners Lane and Buckley; dropped me in at the office of the Boston Evening American, and then breezed me out to Newton.

There I saw the house that Jack is building. It is a peach. I understand it will cost him considerable money, but I always believe in buying the best if one can afford to do so. Then, if you later desire to sell, you can always get your original investment back, and usually a profit in addition.

FOR ELEVATING BOXING

I told Sharkey I am glad he is doing everything possible for his wife and three children, and that he is also elevating himself.

Boxers should try to get away from the sweater and cap days. Boxing is a noble profession, and it is up to fellows like Sharkey, Tunney and myself to boost the game. We can do this by living right and winning the respect and confidence of those persons with whom we come in contact.

Jack then insisted that I drop around to see the Buckley children. He figured the youngsters would get a kick out of meeting the former champion.

I was pleased by the way Sharkey spoke of the fine way he had been handled by Johnny Buckley. He declared their success was a 50-50 affair which convinced me he was the type who is anxious to give credit where it is due.

Later Jack dropped me at the Boston Opera House where I was scheduled to rehearse. With Mrs. Sharkey, Jack had attended my show on the opening night.

Jack told me his injured knee has responded to treatment and that he expects to sweep back into action next month. When he does, I feel he will better his way through the opposition in the heavyweight division. For Sharkey is a fighter, and if you know him as I do you would like him personally. He is only a youngster with the world still ahead of him.

Lloyd Hahn Retires From Cinder Path

Falls City, Neb., Oct. 18 (AP)—Lloyd Hahn has definitely decided to hang up his running moccasins and, after that, he doesn't know what he will do.

"I could probably run good races for three or four years," he said, "but what is the use? I have seen as much of the track as most runners and I am ready to retire."

As to his future plans the famous Hahn was silent.

HANSEN MEETS M'GUIRE

Another large evening is in order for wrestling devotees tonight, when Paul Bowser will promote his second all-star card of the season at the Grand Opera House.

Charlie Hansen, popular Swedish heavyweight star, will make his first start of the season against Joe Ned McGuire, Irish giant, in the feature bout, best two out of three falls to a finish. Hansen, one of the smartest and fastest of all the heavyweight wrestlers, rules a 10-to-8 favorite to defeat the huge Irishman, despite the sensational showing McGuire made a week ago.

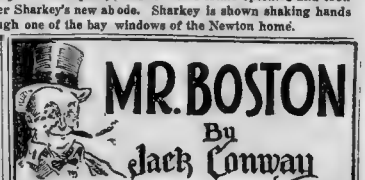

Last season Hansen lost only two matches—one to Farmer George Mc-Leod and the other to Gus Sonnenberg. He is shooting at matches with both of his conquerors and will start his campaign in that direction tonight.

McGuire, too, has lofty aspirations. Last year he was more or less of a trial horse for the heavyweight wrestlers, strong and capable, but not a star. This year his improvement in every branch of the game has been remarkable, and though he will be the underdog tonight, it would be no surprise to close followers of the wrestling game if he should win.

Freddy Meyers of Chicago, rated as one of the most promising young heavyweight in the Middle West, will be the cynosure of all eyes when he steps out against Stanley Siask in the one-fall semifinal bout. As an amateur, Meyers won the New England A. A. U. championship beating Charlie Enstman, former Harvard football and wrestling star, in the final bout, won the national amateur title, and then went on to become Olympic heavyweight wrestling champion.

He is said to be a marvel, but Stasiak, big and rough and experienced, will give him a thorough test this evening.

Jim Frank, German heavyweight, is another newcomer to appear on the card. His opponent will be George Walker, Canadian lightheavyweight champion, and they will meet in another one-fall match to a finish.

"TRY and get a ticket for the Harvard-Army football game at the Stadium on Saturday," said Mr. Boston laughingly as he sent an office boy out for some orange juice upon his arrival in the office today. "It is much easier to secure Harvard-Yale pasteboards than it is to get ducats for the jam between the Army Mule and Jawn Harvard.

"For years the Army-Yale games have been spectacular, colorful affairs, while the Army-Navy clashes attracted people from all parts of the country. Now the Harvard-Army tilt stands with the great shows of the fall football season.

"At Chicago, last Saturday, 123,000 persons saw Navy and Notre Dame battle at Soldiers Field. This set a new world's record for attendance for a sporting event in the United States.

"I believe that if there were 150,000 seats in the Harvard Stadium they would all be taken on Saturday. Unfortunately, the seating capacity is only around 50,000.

"College football has reached a point where the big games can only be witnessed by the student body, the graduates and a privileged few in addition.

"The reason why football is so popular is because everybody knows the games are contested on their merits. I have never known a tinhorn gambler who was so daffy as to try to put a big college football game in the bag. If he did, he would come to in an emergency hospital.

"I FIND that our golfers are dying hard. The fine weather during the past few weeks has caused thousands of golfers to report for action at the various clubs.

"I dropped out to Sandy Burr in Wayland the other afternoon and found an enthusiastic field of golfers doing their stuff.

"Sandy Burr is one of the finest courses which I have ever dug up with some of my wild iron and mashie shots. Its fairways are wide, while there are some sporty traps and water holes.

"Sandy Burr is the child of Gus White's brain. He put this big affair over by tireless work and real service to the members and their guests.

"The clubhouse at Sandy Burr is one of the finest in New England. Other clubs would improve their standing and make a greater appeal to their members if they also had spacious and well equipped clubhouses.

"GOLF has got to be a year-round game. When conditions in the North are no longer suitable for the links sport, the star golfers begin their parade South. Nowadays many of the duffers manage to spend a few weeks near some Southern golf course during the winter months.

"TOM HEENEY sails for the United States on October 24. The New England heavyweight picked up $200,000 during his last American invasion.. It has been said that when he arrived in this country for the first time he was without funds.. The boxing racket makes its millionaires overnight."

Army Eleven Is Due to Arrive in the Hub Tonight

CADETS IN PERFECT SHAPE FOR BATTLE

By BILL [illegible]

On Board the Army Special, Oct. 18—With Major Philip B. Fleming, the graduate manager of athletics in charge, the West Point football and soccer squads are rolling along at a merry clip for Boston.

The football and soccer squads were excused after they stood drill this morning and after lunch at the training table in the mess hall retired to the gymnasium for a final talk by Head Coach "Biff" Jones.

There are 38 varsity football players making the trip to Harvard and 22 soccer men.

The West Point party ferried across the Hudson to Garrison, N. Y., where a special train was waiting to take it through to the Hub without change.

The route is through Albany and over the B. & A. to the Huntington ave. station, where they are due to arrive at 9.20 this evening.

The football squad and coaches will be taken to the Belmont Spring Country Club, which will be their headquarters during the stay. The soccer team has reservations at the University Club.

FEAR YALE.

The Army is expecting a hard game from the Crimson, but although none of the coaches will make any predictions, it is quite evident that Yale is giving West Point more cause for worry than Harvard.

One thing that was mentioned was that playing Harvard and Yale within eight days did not meet up with the approval of the coaches. The Army is admittedly shy of first calibre substitutes and injuries are bound to crop up in Harvard and Yale contests. If any of the first string men are badly hurt, West Point is going to be weakened for Notre Dame, Nebraska, and Leland-Stanford.

The West Point corps is scheduled to start for Boston tomorrow night and without exception every officer and cadet is trying to figure out how they have been routed to take almost twelve hours to make the trip.

The Army held secret practice on the Plains yesterday afternoon. Much of the two hours was devoted to smoothing out the defense for forward passes. Coach Jones realizes that Harvard has not opened up this season and with the S. M. U. game still fresh in his mind, he is most desirous of sending his charges in against Harvard well grounded on a defense for forward passes.

West Point has a powerful running attack and has been fairly successful when they took to the air. "Herthe" Murrel is a 185-pound fullback built along the lines of Percy Wendell and a line plunger of the Wendell type.

Murrel came to West Point via the University of Minnesota route and he played two years of Western Conference football before he came east. He has been a most consistent ground gainer for the Army. He is also a passer and does the punting, which qualifies him as a triple threat.

CAGLE PRIDE OF ARMY

While Murrel's assignments call for him to smash through the line for the short gains, Red Cagle is the pride of the Army. Cagle is a product of Louisiana and attended Southwestern Louisiana Institute. He has been a member of squad A for two years and was selected by the majority of experts for all-America honors last fall.

He is a fast shifty runner, who always travels with his head up. He is a demon on off tackle and end run plays and will carry more than his share of the offensive burden in the Harvard game.

"Spike" Nave will be at quarter. He was the field general last year and his all-around work has shown great improvement this fall. Before Nave was appointed he spent three years at Iowa State College, where he played end on the football team and won his letter as an outfielder.

He can be relied upon to get the best out of his backs and will be quick to discover any weakness in the Crimson line.

Dick O'Keefe, who prepped at DeWitt in Washington, D. C., and a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be in the backfield with the Army veterans, Cagle, Murrel and Nave. O'Keefe came fast during the past week, stepping through Charlie Allan, the former Virginia Polytechnic Institute star; Dick Hutchinson from Minnesota, a letter man, and Clark Piper. The reports have given Allan the edge but O'Keefe is down to start the Harvard game.

WEAK ON WINGS

There are three questionable spots on the Army line. West Point lost both first and second string ends through graduation last June. Born and Harbold were two of the finest ends the Army has had in years and they left a big hole when they went out to enter the service.

Carl Carlmark and Eddie Messenger will start against the Crimson, but, although they received considerable experience during the S. M. U. game, when forward and lateral passes filled the air, they are far from the standard of Born and Harbold.

Capt. Mort Sprague and Buster Perry, the tackles, and Bill Hall at center, are the key to the Army's line. Sprague weighs 214 pounds, stands over six feet, and is lightning fast. He was selected for the all-America team last year and is playing the best football of his career.

So versatile are Sprague and Perry that they can be of the greatest assistance to their ends and also take some of the duties of the guards. In fact, they are supermen.

The strength of the Army line is beautifully distributed, strong at center and tackles. Bill Hall, the center, was converted from a backfield man to a snapper back. He weighs only about 170 but he can step around and smack the boys down as hard as any player on the squad.

Although two of the four leading candidates for guards are letter men, the entire flanking situation is acute. Louie Hammack appears to have a strong hold on the left guard job, but Burrell Walsh, who was awarded his varsity insignia last year, has been forced to step aside for Jack Dibb, who came here from the regular army.

Big Advance Sale for Burke Benefit

In order that the general public might be convenienced, the ticket committee for the Michael J. Burke Testimonial has arranged for the distribution at the following places: Offices of the Argonne A. A., 3[illegible] Washington st.; Elks Hotel, Tremont st., Boston; Revere, Somerville and Cambridge Lodges of Elks; Tremonth Turkish Baths, Tremont Theater Building, and the Boston Arena, St. Botolph st.

From present indications there is every reason to expect that this testimonial will eclipse anything of its sort ever held in Boston. The demand for tickets to date, assures an immense gathering at the Boston Arena on October 30th, and when Eddie Mack announces the card of bouts, which he is arranging, the demand will undoubtedly be great.

Dave Cuarnaccia Will Kick for Harvard

LONG DRILL ON AERIAL ATTACK

Harvard Confident Overhead Game Will Give Them Victory

Harvard is putting on its finishing touches for the Army game this afternoon. By nightfall the Crimson football machine must be perfect defensively and offensively.

The session today will close an important Harvard football drive which started on September 15 with the Army game as its objective.

Coach Arnold Horween is quite satisfied with the defense play of his eleven. His offense is now and needs plenty of polishing up. There will be a practice session tomorrow but the practice will be short and sweet being confined solely to a snappy but thorough rehearsal of plays.

In these late stages of development Coach Horween has made one significant change. He has taken the kicking duties away from the nimble Arthur French and has assigned the same to the burly and rugged Dave Guarnaccia. What Harvard will gain in punting from this change makes little difference to Coach Horween.

CHANGE BAFFLING

The change was made to place Harvard in a better situation for the execution of its passing game, a big factor in its offensive barrage against the Army. It makes Guarnaccia a triple threat in the true sense of the word.

With Capt. French back in kick formation the Army could expect a punt nine times out of ten. With Guarnaccia back in the fullback's post any one of three things can happen: Guarnaccia can punt some fifty yards with consistency.

He certainly is no boob as a runner.

But what is more important he can heave a pass with amazing accuracy. Which one of these three things Guarnaccia will elect is left for the Army to solve.

This passing game should constitute a major share in Harvard's offense. If the Army has a weakness, it is in its defense against the overhead pass.

Coach Biff Jones has been drilling these cadets all season against possible passes but in their games to date the cadets have failed to carry out his instructions in more than one instance.

Harvard this year has all kinds of combinations for a pass. French to Gilligan, Harper to Guarnaccia, Guarnaccia to any back or end, Putnam to French, Putnam to O'Connell—any number of combinations can be inscribed and all with equal success.

Top this passing avalanche with Harvard's tricky lateral pass and the Army is none too potent in this coming game.

HARVARD CONFIDENT

Over at Harvard there is hope. In fact there is plenty of confidence. Despite the loud reports concerning the strength of this Army team the Crimson supporters fail to be awed. They claim that the Army has yet to beat any one of worth. A little hick college, Southern Methodist, gave the cadets the scare of their lives two weeks ago.

Southern Methodist had the strong Army team bewildered with its passing game. Harvard fans claim that a similar occurence will be enacted on the Stadium grass on Saturday once Mr. Guarnaccia and his passing company put on the steam.

They claim that Army will have its hands full stopping such fast backs as French, Gilligan, Harper and Guarnaccia. Such confidence must be reserved.

Al Morelli a Tower of Strength

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

If you've ever read Tarzan or seen Gus Sonnenberg perform with the mat gladiators, you're capable of constructing a first-class picture of Al Morelli, Boston College's sophomore guard.

Just throw in a few pounds of TNT and a couple of hungry polar bears and there you have a conservative image of the Eagles' man of might.

Tom Smith is tough. Warren McGuirk and Pete Herman bend iron piping with their teeth; a look from Andy Anderson would put the most ferocious movie villain to shame, but when Al Morelli starts to play football the nearby buildings quiver and the earth begins to shake.

Morelli is an Italian youth who hails from Revere, where he first learned to mangle opponents at the village high school. He's only five feet seven inches tall but weighs close to 195 pounds, all of which is muscle.

Morelli has a chest like a small keg. He has massive shoulders and an enormous pair of legs, which are slightly bowed although he admits he never rode a horse. He has a perfect build for a lineman. A bit squat and chunky, perhaps, but there isn't an ounce of surplus avoirdupois upon that frame.

FAILED AS FRESHMAN

Morelli was the surprise of the Boston College squad this fall. He wasn't a regular last fall on his freshman team. Bud Gorman and Shaker O'Connor nosed him out for the guard berths, while Plausse and Young held the tackle job most of the time.

Al reported for a tackle berth but John McManmon, line coach, converted him into a guard after two days. McGuirk and Hermann were stationed in the tackle jobs and Morelli looked too enormous to waste on the bench.

McManmon had to keep him out of scrimmages for the better part of the time. Morelli used to rip his own playmates apart and toss them to all parts of Alumni Field. McManmon was afraid somebody would get hurt.

Al started against Catholic University and was prominent all during the struggle. Nobody come out of the game with any broken legs or ears torn off because it was a bit too hot for Al to cut loose.

The following Saturday he played against the Navy. And the Navy captain, Ed Burke, a ... Burke is a bad man, but Morelli gave him plenty. He took something, too. A badly sprained ankle to be precise, but it didn't even phase him.

He went back into the game near the final whistle, after being carried off in the second quarter.

Morelli wasn't supposed to play against Duke on the holiday, but he had Dr. Godvin strap up his ankle and urged McKenney to let him play for a few minutes.

Al grabbed a fumble out of the air on his 30-yard mark after he had been in a while, and showed the speed of a halfback galloping down the field with the whole Duke team after him.

He made the 12 yard line but cut back to dodge a Duke player who was being handled by a B. C. interferer and was nailed from behind. You'd never know Morelli had a sprained ankle while he was making that jaunt. But that's only a sample of his fire and dash.

Al is back in stride once more with only one ankle support necessary to keep his injury on the mend. He'll be in the game against Boston University a week from Saturday and if you want to see a real he-man, a clean sportsman despite his rough and tumble nature, get out to Fenway and watch B. C.'s Gus Sonnenberg in action.

Yale Turns Down City Officials

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 18 (AP)—An overwhelming demand for tickets for the Yale-Army game and the request of West Point for an additional allotment has made it necessary for the Yale management to deny city officials tickets on their applications. The total of applications for the game was 89,000 and the seating capacity of the bowl is slightly over 74,000.

TWO TRAINS TO BRING CADETS

The West Point Cadets, who will hold two parades and two reviews in connection with their attendance at the Harvard-Army game in the Harvard Stadium, will arrive in Boston Saturday in two sections, one at 8.30 a. m. and the other at 9 o'clock.

Their special trains will unload the cadets, finest drilled soldiers in the world, at the Back Bay station where they, with their commander, Maj.-Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of West Point, will be greeted by Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, commanding the First Corps area.

Immediately on detraining the corps will form and march to Boston Common through Huntington ave., Dartmouth st. to Beacon to the Common entrance at Beacon and Charles sts.

At 9.30 the corps will pass in review on the Common. On the reviewing stand will be Gov. Fuller, Maj.-Gen. Smith, Maj.-Gen. Brown, Mayor Nichols and Mayor Quinn of Cambridge.

Following the Boston Common ceremony the corps will move parallel to Boylston st. to a special entrance to the Park st. subway station, entraining there in two special trains for Harvard sq., arriving at 10.30.

At Harvard sq. station the corps will reform and march to the Harvard Yard, where the cadets will be dismissed. They will lunch at Harvard Union and will form again at 1.30 in the yard for the march to the stadium through Massachusetts ave., Wolfe st., Memorial Drive parkway, Weeks bridge and the Speedway.

At 2 p. m., the cadets will pass in review before President Lowell of Harvard in the stadium.

Twenty minutes after the game is ended, the corps will march back to Weeks bridge, through the speedway on the south bank of the Charles, to Cambridge ave., to the Allston yards where they will entrain at 6 and 6.30 p. m. for the return to West Point.

Tufts Eleven Will Leave for Maine Tomorrow

ELLIS WILL ADDRESS STUDENTS

Monster Mass Meeting in Goddard Gym Scheduled for Tonight

The Jumbos will wind up their week of practice for the Bowdoin game with a light workout this afternoon which will consist mainly of signal practice. They will leave for Maine Friday afternoon and will stop in Portland over Friday night.

A monster mass meeting will be held in Goddard Gymnasium tonight. Nearly everyone in the college is expected to turn out to cheer the team and to listen to the speeches of Coach Sampson and Capt. "Fish" Ellis.

College Hill will be vacant Saturday when a wholesale invasion of Maine by the Tufts' supporters is planned. Extra coaches have been added to "The Flying Yankee" and Ivy, the junior honorary society, is selling tickets for the round trip.

Yesterday's workout was one of the hardest sessions of the year to date. It consisted mainly of a long scrimmage with the varsity pitted against the junior varsity outfit. The first string backfield made long gains at the expense of the scrubs.

The passing attack and defense of the first team is nothing to boast of at present and an improvement must be made in this department of the game before Tufts meets Brown or they will be passed out of the picture.

"Fish" Ellis seems to be the only man on the team who is able to receive forwards and "Husky" Phillips seems to be the only one who can throw them. The majority of the first downs gained against the Jumbos this year have been made by the aerial route.

Coaches Manley and Sampson have decided to start the same line against Bowdoin that was started against Colby. Brehaut will hold down the center berth with Ruggerio and Rachdorf flanking him while Luckacs and Carit will take care of the tackle positions. Littleton, Gibbons Karklin, Tobey, and Wilkinson will probably be the first substitutes to see service.

Get a good piece of real estate, buy it wisely, pay for it, keep it, and later it will keep you. See the sound values listed today in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads.

TRAINING FOR RENAULT

Jim Maloney will meet his toughest opponent since making his comeback next Monday night when he battles Jack Renault at Mechanics Building. A win over the New York heavyweight will put the South Boston battler back in the heavyweight scramble for Gene Tunney's crown.

MONOLIAN AND MELLO CLASH NOV. 6

Al Mello, New England welterweight champion, today signed to battle Wop Monolian in a 10-round bout to be staged by the Argonne A. A. at Mechanics Building on November 6.

This match has been in the fire for two years. Mello and Monolian were signed to battle for the Suffolk Club two years ago, but the bout was called off at the last minute. Since then numerous unsuccessful attempts have been made to bring the rival punchers together.

It will be a meeting of champions, as Mello holds the New England welterweight title, while Monolian is middleweight boss.

RIVERS SCHOOL HAS 'IRON MAN' ELEVEN

By DICK McSWEENEY

Rivers school, situated in Brookline, possesses beautiful grounds and a beautiful football team, if one may use the word beautiful in describing a football team.

Charles "Pop" Foster is coach and also director of physical education.

All sports at Rivers school are conducted on the basis of equal weight, age, and height, so that no boy is playing against an opponent who is older or heavier than himself.

This system guarantees games in which both sides are evenly matched in height, weight and age, so that brains rather than brawn determines the outcome.

The lack of substitute material at Rivers has led football fans calling the Rivers gridsters "Iron Men," since the team has gone through several contests without using any substitutes. This is another fact that speaks well for the co-efficient system.

The lineup of Rivers' "Iron Men" is as follows: William Elliot and Gardner Sherman, ends; Knight Ames and Philip Delano, tackles; William Glazier and Stanley Nutt, guards; Winslow Lewis, center; Steven Hopkins, quarterback and captain, Allan McKissock, right halfback; Hugh Murphy, left halfback, and Denton Cook, fullback.

Steven Hopkins, the captain of Rivers football team is also a star hockey player, and is very popular both with teammates and classmates.

Country Day School is the traditional rival of Rivers School and the Rivers boys were anxious to compete with their rival in football. However, Country Day School refuses to play football on the co-efficient system, although it has agreed to use the co-efficient system in other sports, such as hockey and baseball.

On Saturday, Rivers School entertains Milton Academy junior varsity at Rivers and the "Iron Men" expect to score a victory.

Bucksport Seminary, Maine, has three former Boston high school athletes, Mahoney, Kenely and Jundquit, on its football team. Kenely was captain of the Brighton hockey team last winter and is an all-round athlete.

The football team of Exeter Academy has several former Greater Boston athletes in its lineup who are playing a fine game for the New Hampshire institution.

Some of those local boys are included in the following: Daniel Rollins of Brookline, Deeb Peter of Melrose, David Cheek and Nathaniel Tenney of Cambridge, Arthur Lane of Arlington, Donald Finlayson of Cambridge, James Ayer of Milton, Roger Hallowell of Readville, and Theodore Jones of Wellesley Hills.

Coach Henry Blake is pleased with the material at hand and looks for one of the best elevens Exeter has had in a long time.

FUENTE-MILLS ON ARGONNE RING CARD

MATCHMAKER EDDIE MACK of the Argonne A. A. announced today he has signed Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, to battle Bob Mills, New Hampshire heavyweight champion, in the eight-round semi-final to the Jim Maloney-Jack Renault bout which will be staged at Mechanics Building on next Monday night.

Jack Conway

Fuente collided with Maloney at Braves Field last summer. He was forced to discontinue when he injured one of his legs during the progress of the bout.

Since then the Mexican has been making his home in Boston. He views his meeting with Mills as a stepping stone to better matches.

Mills is a protege of Harry Kelley. He is one of the most promising looking big fellows in the country. He knocked out Eddie Callahan at Franklin, N. H., when the latter was being touted as a possible contender. He then tipped over Romero Rojas.

Kelley declares Mills is ready for bigger game. In the event he wins over Fuente, Bob will seek action with Jack Gagnon.

RENAULT, who meets Maloney in the feature event, apparently intends to keep active in the ring. Following his meeting with Shamus on next Monday night he will hop out to Detroit to collide with Otto Von Porat. The latter has been boxing in sensational style in Western rings.

A RETURN bout between Ernie Schaaf and Tiger Payne would play to a big crowd. There has been widespread dissatisfaction with the decision which gave Payne the duke over the Fighting Viking. The fact Payne was the underdog caused many fans to root for him. It is argued that the crowd may have had some influence upon the officials.

I believe the officials gave the decision as they saw it, but in view of the many arguments as to whether Payne or Schaaf was the rightful winner, it is likely that the big fellows will be rematched.

AL BROWN, who has been proclaimed world's bantamweight champion by the National Boxing Association, is likely to appear in a Boston ring when he returns to America following his Paris engagements with Johnny Cuthbert, British title holder, and Young Humery, French champion.

It is possible that Johnny Vacca, twice conqueror of Fidel LaBarba, will be pitted against the first negro to hold the world's bantamweight crown since the days of George Dixon.

THE committee in charge of the Mike Burke testimonial reports a heavy demand for reservations. This will be the greatest show of its kind ever held in Boston. In addition to several four and six-round bouts to decisions, there will be a number of exhibitions and a world of theatrical acts. I believe it will even surpass the Matty Baldwin and Johnny Duffy testimonials.

Eddie Shore Signs Bruin Contract

The Bruins have completed the personnel of the 1928-29 squad which reports here Monday to start practice for the approaching major league hockey season. The first National League game will be played in Boston November 20, with the Canadiens appearing as the rival team.

PICK 3 OFFICIALS FOR WALTHAM-FITCHBURG GO

Fitchburg, Oct. 18—Three officials of the four that will officiate at the Waltham-Fitchburg football game at Waltham on Saturday have been chosen by Director Clarence N. Amiott of Fitchburg and Faculty Manager Hodges of Waltham and the fourth official will be selected before tomorrow night. Those selected are as follows: J. W. Mooney, Boston Post, E. W. Ireland of Somerville and W. R. Higgins of Lawrence. It was thought at first that the game would not be played but the appointment of competent officials has prevented Fitchburg from cancelling the game, which it threatened to do if competent and reliable officials were not chosen.

Style Authority

THE best dressed men of England are seen in the Royal Enclosure at Ascot—and that's where we first saw this Box Cloth Top Shoe.

In this fashionable group you meet the style leaders of the world—men who do things different and wear things different and are not afraid to express their preference and personality. And not the least important of this select set was the Prince of Wales himself who wore a Box Cloth Top shoe into the Royal Box.

Our next move was to find a bootmaker who made shoes for Royalty and we found Bartley. Bartley and Sons have been making shoes for more than 100 years in the same spot (493 Oxford St., London W.). They hold Royal Warrants of Appointment to His Majesty the King and to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

We paid Bartley £5:10 ($26.50) for this grey English Box Cloth Top Boot trimmed with Russia Calf—and we bought 40 pairs so that we could show one of Bartley's original custom models with the Regal Reproduction side by side in every Regal Store in U.S.A.

The lasts are identical in both measurement and appearance and the design is exactly the same. The Upper Leather of Bartley's original is an Imported Calfskin tanned in Oisterwyk, Holland, and in the Regal Reproduction we are using the same identical tannage.

But Price isn't the only difference. Bartley's shoes are all made and sewn by hand. Our shoes are sewn by the same machine as practically all high priced American shoes. In Bartley's shop only four men handle the shoe from the time it is cut until it is finished. In our Factory about 150 different persons perform some operation on a Regal Shoe. BARTLEY AVERAGES ABOUT THREE PAIRS A DAY—IN OUR FACTORY WE MAKE MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND A DAY.

Martha Lee Tells of Corn in Menus

DID you ever stop to think what a varied role corn may play in our menus? First [illegible] is corn from the can just heated and [illegible] as [illegible]. Then the corn may be fried with bacon or other meat with a strong flavor. It may be combined with other foods and made into a [illegible] or a scallop [illegible] and [illegible] and there is the beginning of fritters. And then [illegible] corn chowder and Mexican corn—the ways of using it are endless.

Martha Lee.

But still newer methods are being evolved by independent cooks. A group of recipes which are unique and different is suggested below:

Baked Stuffed Eggs with Corn—Cut [illegible] hard-cooked eggs in half lengthwise and mash yolks. Saute ½ c. chopped mushrooms in 2 tbsp. butter until tender and add to eggs. Add 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ⅛ tsp. prepared mustard and 2 tbsp. cream and refill whites with the mixture.

Place in a shallow buttered baking dish. To a can of corn add ¼ c. cream and seasonings to taste and pour around the eggs. Cover with buttered breadcrumbs and brown in a hot oven.

Corn Oysters—To one cup of canned corn add one tbsp. melted butter and ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, 4 tbsps. flour and ½ tsp. baking powder mixed together.

Add one beaten egg yolk and fold in one beaten egg white. Drop by small spoonfuls into hot fat (375 to 385 degrees) and fry to a golden brown. Drain well.

Mexican Corn—Saute one medium-sized chopped onion in two tbsps. butter until a golden brown, then add one tbsp. flour and stir until smooth. Add two cups canned tomatoes, two cups canned corn, two canned pimentos cut in strips, one tsp. salt, one tsp. sage and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cover thickly with buttered crumbs. Brown in a hot oven.

Corn Cakes—Beat two eggs well, add ⅓ cup sour milk, ½ tsp. soda and 1 cup of canned corn. Sift together 1 cup flour, ½ tsp. salt and 2 tsps. baking powder and add to the corn mixture. Stir in 1 tbsp. of melted butter. Then fry in small cakes on a hot griddle. Serve with pork sausage and gravy or with maple syrup.

Corn Chowder—Dice and fry ¼ pound bacon, add 1 small onion and 1 green pepper, both diced. Saute until brown. Add 4 cups of diced boiled potatoes and allow them to fry until slightly browned.

Add contents one number 2 can of corn, 5 cups milk, 2½ tbsps. salt, and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Bring to scalding and serve immediately. If desired minced parsley or chives may be sprinkled on the top as a garnish.

Corn and Cheese Souffle—One c. corn, 3 tbsp. butter, 3 tbsp. flour, 1 c. scalded milk, ½ tsp. salt, few grains cayenne, ½ c. grated Old English or Young American cheese, yolks of 3 eggs, whites 3 eggs.

Melt butter, add flour, and when well mixed add gradually scalded milk. Then add corn, salt, cayenne and cheese. Remove from fire; add yolks of eggs beaten until lemon colored. Cool mixture, and cut and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a slow oven. Serve at once.

Corn Creole—This is a "good seller" in a certain cafeteria because it is inexpensive, hearty and well liked.

Make a cup of well seasoned tomato sauce, add 1 c. of canned corn, also 1 red and 1 green pepper, cut small. Boil for a few minutes and serve on slices of bread which have been fried in hot butter.

Corn Tamale—Two c. canned tomatoes, 1c. canned corn, 1c. cornmeal, ½ c. olives, 1 c. chopped meat, 2 tsp. minced onion, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. minced parsley, 2 tsp. salt, dash cayenne, 1 tsp. paprika, 1 tbsp. melted butter, fat or oil, dash black pepper.

Mix together the tomatoes, corn, cornmeal, the olives, stoned, and the chopped meat. Add the eggs, well beaten, with the onion, parsley, salt, black pepper, cayenne pepper and fat. Combine thoroughly. Pour into a buttered baking pan or casserole and bake at 425 degrees F. for one hour.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

ANOTHER UNSOLICITED TRIBUTE FOR ALL-BRAN

Good news for sufferers from constipation

Mrs. Kiell sat down and wrote us a letter when she had proved ALL-BRAN a safe "sure-cure" for constipation. Read her voluntary tribute:

April 4, 1927

"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for quite some time and I want to tell you how much I appreciate it. I have found it a sure-cure for constipation, and know it is a remarkable regulator for the stomach. After using it, my family and I certainly will not be without it. I have even gone so far as to send some of it to my mother in Poland, Europe."

Gratefully yours,
MRS. ANNA KIELL,
77 Wolcott Terrace, Newark, N. J.

Perhaps you know what a terrible affliction constipation is. Blighting wherever it thrives. Ruining health. Marring beauty. Causing headaches, back pains, foul breath, loss of sleep—indeed, leading to more than forty serious diseases.

But did you know it can be easily relieved by a pleasant cereal food? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring relief. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Serve with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Women to Fete New Federation Chief

"IF you would keep your bark of connubial happiness off the rocks of divorce, look well to your husband's comfort!"

Strangely impressive advice from a woman who has been before the public all her life. During 18 busy years as Mrs. Carl L. Watson, she has literally practiced what she preaches. The doctor's meals and his welfare are more vital than anything else in the world. Perhaps that is why he has such a happy expression.

Governor and Mrs. Fuller, Mayor and Mrs. Nichols, John C. Hull, B. Loring Young, Henry Parkman, Jr., and Mrs. A. A. Packard, Massachusetts State president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, are among the invited guests at the luncheon and reception being held at the Hotel Statler tomorrow in Mrs. Dr. Watson's honor, as newly-elected president of the Boston City Federation.

Nancy Brewster

I wonder how many of these distinguished guests will remember her as Eva Bartlett Macy, public reader extraordinary, and of national fame. She made her first appearance at a piano recital at the age of four.

Her next triumph was when she spoke at the age of 10 before 3000 people in Tremont Temple; here she was awarded first prize over other boys and girls ranging from 10 to 20 years of [illegible].

She has spoken over WNAC and WEEI, held over 5000 concerts in every city and State in the Union; belongs to almost every club of any importance, including the Quota, which like the Rotary, only one member of a profession may join, and best of all, she is utterly unspoiled by all this adulation.

If your sea of matrimony is rough and stormy, I suggest you read the first paragraph over again. You may find therein, oil for [illegible] troubled waters.

FRIDAY MEETING

PILGRIM WOMAN'S CLUB

An illustrated lecture by Miss Bessie Mae Kelley will feature the Friday meeting to be held at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Upham's Corner. Following the meeting a food sale will be held.

WOMEN MUSICIANS' ASS'N.

This year the club will meet at 1 Arlington st. and will open the season on Friday at 2:15 p. m.

BOSTON CITY FEDERATION

The morning session will open at 10:30 at the Hotel Statler. This meeting will be open to the public, as will be the luncheon. Tickets may be obtained for the luncheon of Mrs. David A. Wescott, 24 Algonquin st., Dorchester.

DORCHESTER WOMEN'S CLUB.

Second day of the International Fair, from 10 to 10.

XXIV CLUB, HAVERHILL.

Mrs. Henry Culliford, president, will open the meeting. Harvest dinner at the home of Mrs. Herbert C. Biglow.

FATHERS' AND MOTHERS' CLUB

After a very successful summer at their vacation camp in Reading, the club has started in for their fall work. The first social affair of the season will be held at Hotel Bellevue at 2 p. m. At this party we are calling in the little sunshine bags that were sent out last June.

G. A. R. ASSOCIATION.

Mrs. Maud Boyce, department president of the Ladies of the G. A. R., will make official visit to the Col. Henry Splaine Circle 39, of Haverhill. Mrs. Eva F. Phillips, the department inspector, will accompany the president and inspect the circles at the same time. George S. Bell Circle 17, of Athol, was visited yesterday.

SECRETARIES AND PRESS CHAIRMEN:

I shall be pleased to receive news of your club activities, photographs of executives who are leading the women's club movement, or any matter that you believe helpful or interesting to the public. Please feel free to call Liberty 4000, or visit me here. My office hours are from 9 to 10:30 a. m., and from 4 to 5 p. m.

Another Broadway Star for Movies

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18—Raymond Hatton, who with Wallace Beery was in great vogue while this team's popularity was at its peak, hasn't made a picture since he left the Lasky rooftree. Ray has plenty of money so he didn't worry about getting a job until one came right to his doorstep. His first appearance as a free lance player is in "The Office Scandal."

He plays a newspaper editor. Someone on the Pathe lot tried to sell me the idea that "The Office Scandal" is akin to "The Front Page." Having read that play I don't believe there is another one like it in existence. But "The Office Scandal" has one thing in its favor. It has Phyllis Haver and I don't think there is a man, woman or child who doesn't like her on the screen. She is the star or at least the principal player.

THE way our Hollywood producers are shopping for talent on Broadway is nobody's business. If the inroads made the last few months increase we shall have Broadway coming to Hollywood for artists.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, harkening to all this hue and cry for stage favorites, has gone and signed Charles King up as the chief song and dance artist in "Broadway Melody." King played in "Hit the Deck" with Louise Groody. Moreover, he is a cousin of George M. Cohan and he is reported to have a swell baritone voice.

Bessie Love—our local favorite, as they say in the Toonerville Gazette, appears with him and four song favorites are being especially written for them by Billy Rose, Arthur Fried and Lou Handman. Meanwhile, they are looking for someone to play the lead in "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

RAOUL WALSH may have been threatened with the loss of his eyesight but he is certainly feeling chipper these days. A telegram says that he is not going to lose his eyesight, he hasn't had any convulsions and he is still an Irish Democrat. When anybody can think of politics with a bum optic I will say they are not so sick.

It's bad enough to think of politics when you are well. Anyway, it's great news. The bad reports from the Walsh bedside certainly cast a gloom over Hollywood. Raoul wires he will be back among us next week. That is good news, too.

TALKING pictures are in for a little razzing. Joseph Jackson and William Jutte have written a burlesque on the talkies. Good-natured, you understand. Naturally with Joe doing titles over at the Warners' studio, he just wouldn't say anything against the Vitaphone. Not that Jack Warner doesn't relish a joke more than anyone I have ever known.

The vaudeville number is called "The Spoils of Last," and it will star Fanny Brice who opens at the Palace Theater November 4. William Jutte is also a dialogue writer with Pathe, so you can see that the boys know their stuff. The stage skit was written after Joseph Jackson's work on "My Man" for Miss Brice.

VAUDEVILLE these days is looked upon as a stepping stone to movies. Think that one over and see if you get what I mean. What I am trying to say is that any stage experience whether it be doing a sketch in the two a day or emoting in a Broadway theater, offers experience.

William Desmond, who has been trouping in vaudeville for the last few years, will bear me out in this. He hadn't been in Hollywood many hours before he was offered a part in "No Defense," Monte Blue's picture and he has accepted it. His wife, Mary McIvor, is also planning to return to the screen.

LOOKING over a long, long interview Jesse L. Lasky granted on sound pictures in New York, I was surprised to see the name of Anne Forrest mentioned as one of the players who is making specialties at the Long Island studios. If it is the little blonde Anne Forrest who played in so many of the earlier Paramount pictures I wonder where she has been hiding out all these last few years. She has not been in a picture for four years or more.

Lasky confirms the item already printed in this column that his company will make "Gentlemen of the Press" and "Four Cocoanuts" with the Marx Brothers, June Walker, Ann Pennington, Margot Kelly and a number of other Broadway favorites are mentioned in the list of those who will do talkies. Estelle Taylor, too.

ALL aboard, let's go: Belle Bennett will go to New York to make her first talking picture for Tiffany-Stahl. Al Green has just returned from Detroit where he went to see one performance of "The Five O'Clock Girl," the musical comedy which will star Marion Davies.

Sue Carroll at this moment would give anything she owns if she could sing and speak Spanish. She is the type for the Irving Cummings picture at Fox studios but she cannot sing and she cannot speak Spanish. And since both of these requirements are a necessary part of the leading woman's qualifications, Sue will have to resign in favor of some other little cutie.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Phyllis Haver in the arduous role of hostess at a huge party. Ona Brown also a hostess. Everyone in Hollywood present including a young man who played the organ divinely. Eddie Sutherland getting into a spirited game of handball. Matt Moore in a red and green tie.

Lupe Velez admitting she is in love. Ruth Elder and Ben Lyon motoring to Malibu. Looks like a romance. Little Phillippe De Lacy at church. Edmund Burns at the same service. Doris Kenyon lunching at the Montmartre. Evelyn Brent same place. Both girls recently finished "Interference." That's all today. See you tomorrow!

CORRECT MANNERS

NEVER CORRECT

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly answer in your etiquette column when, if ever, it is correct to eat chicken with one's fingers? REGINA

IT never is—when you are out in the "wide, wide world." Of course, when you are alone—the world will not know if you indulge in this "messy" way of eating. But we shouldn't submit other people to the experience of watching us eat chicken in our fingers!

REATIONSHIPS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I want your assistance referring to relationship. Would my husband's sister's husband by my brotherin-law and an uncle to my children? REAER.

YES, he is your brother-in-law by marriage, and your children should call him "Uncle."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am almost 18. I have been going about with a young man three years my senior. I liked him very much and he always told me he loved me. About three weeks ago I had asked another one of my friends to attend a private dance, because he was a better dancer. Since that time I have not heard from the one I like.

Please tell me what to do regarding this matter. The latter friend does not believe in kissing and petting, and the other does.

LONESOME.

DID you break any promise by inviting the other young man to the dance? Had you and your friend agreed to keep "steady company," as you girls express it? If so you owe him an apology. Write him a little note asking him to come to see you on a certain evening because you have a message for him. When he comes explain to him how sorry you are that you thoughtlessly broke your promise and ask whether you and he cannot be friends again.

If there was no promise, however, and you and he were not engaged, you did nothing to hurt him in going about with another friend. In that case, continue to be sweet to both. Ignore his coolness. He will soon get over it.

Cultivate all the young men you know who are worth-while and take an interest in you. Then later on when you are ready to settle down and marry, you will have a larger circle of friends who are fond of you and will have that much better chance of winning a good husband.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A few weeks ago I met a young man five years my senior. I loved him from the first, but he does not seem to care for me. How can I win his affection? Your advice will certainly be appreciated. BETTY.

THAT is a hard question to answer, —a question that has puzzled many a girl. Some natures are naturally antagonistic. If the young man finds you unattractive and uninteresting nothing you can say or do is likely to win him.

My advice to a girl always is, control your emotion—do not permit your heart to run away with your head. Wait until a young man is really, undeniably attracted to you before permitting yourself to think seriously of him.

A JAUNTY SUIT FOR A SMALL BOY

5246. Quite swagger is the model here pictured. Vest portions finished with pointed lower edges, are outlined by jacket portions, finished with convenient pockets. A coat sleeve and round collar complete the upper portions of this style. The trousers are the usual straight model, with side closing. Black velvet with vest and collar of white pique or corduroy will be an attractive combination for this suit. It is also good in two tones of brown tweed or flannel, and nice in jersey weaves, or suitable wash materials.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 2, 4 and 6 years. A 4-year size requires 1⅝ yards of 40-inch material with ¼ yard of contrasting material for collar and vest portions.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c. in coins or stamps. Send number and size of pattern ordered with your name and address.

Send 12c. in coins or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL AND WINTER 1928-29 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

"Why, they come out so white that you don't have to boil them, much less scrub them at all! That saves me money, for of course the clothes wear longer when they're washed the Rinso way. Saves fuel bills, too.

HE stroked her soft hair, penitent. He had spoken irritably to Joan.

"Forgive me?"

She nodded her head. Through her tightly-closed eyes the hot tears trickled slowly, wetting his hand. "Why am I such a coward? Why didn't I tell before . . . why didn't I? When there was time. . . ."

"Johnnie, dear, I didn't mean to hurt you. It's the damn delay—getting on your nerves. Please forgive me."

Curtis asking her to forgive him . . . Curtis whom she was going to morally hurt . . . He shouldn't have asked her, it made it harder. This was no time to cry, she struggled desperately to hold them back, the tears that surged within her, a hurting, choking torrent, blinding her, shaking her . . . "Connie wasn't that sort . . . she wouldn't have cheated . . . he had said that . . . Curtis. . . .

"Curtis! I can't tell you—I can't—I can't!" Already she could see his face, his stricken, terrible face. Could feel his agony, his heartbreak, his drawing back from her in loathing and disgust. . . . But she could not shut it out, nor stop the tearing, broken sobs. The tears streamed through her fingers, she could not stop them now, they were stronger than her will.

And through it all, through the tears that blinded her, and the sobs that shook her, she could hear his crooning. "Don't, dear . . . don't dear . . . poor little girl!" Curtis still loving her. Curtis, whose love she was about to kill.

When the tears had stopped, as everything must stop at last, her face was swollen and distorted.

She brushed the disheveled hair from her eyes. "I'm sorry," she said in almost her natural voice. "I had to cry, because it is the end of everything. I couldn't help it, but I've stopped now. I won't cry any more. I'll just tell you, and will you please know when I'm telling you that I didn't mean to cheat?

'Joan, What Are You Saying?' He Exclaimed, Brokenly

"Joan—what are you saying? The end of everything—because I—because—Joan—what is it——?

"I thought that when you loved me you should have me. Even if I wasn't really worth having. You see I once loved someone who——"

"Joan! My God—what are you saying to me? Joan——"

"Someone who—who wasn't worth having either, and I wouldn't have cared—I didn't care how bad he was—because I loved him so much. I just wanted him. Anyway. . . . So I thought you would love me that way, too—I didn't know, Curtis—I didn't think about your self-respect—until just now. Do you understand why I didn't tell you? Please do. Please understand. I wouldn't have waited so long. I didn't mean to cheat—I didn't mean that——"

She dropped her eyes then. The red burned her cheeks, her ears, her throat. She had been so steeped in suffering for him she had forgotten this, the shame of telling . . . of having him know.

He began to walk up and down, his hand pressed to his twitching mouth. When he spoke again it was with his back to her, looking out of the window, into the dark. "So it was true. An anonymous letter to tell me. And I believed you . . ." He turned around and faced her from his corner. "You looked into my eyes and said it was a lie . . . Joan . . . How could you?"

At first she didn't understand. Then it flashed over her, sickly. He thought she was trying to say that she had lied about the silly letter, about the sailor, and someone's lover . . .

"Oh, that isn't what I'm talking about!"

"No? Something else again—Joan, why have you done this to me? Haven't I always been—"

"Yes, always good to me—too good, Curtis. That's why I couldn't tell. I thought and thought. I've been nearly mad trying to decide. One day I'd think I should tell you—and then you'd say something—about loving me so much—"

She heard him groan.

He Came Nearer and Saw the Flicker of Hope in Her Eyes

"And I couldn't bear to tell you then . . . so I didn't. . . ."

"You lied to me, Joan. That's what I can't forgive. When I told you about the letter—"

"But it was a lie, Curtis! It was!" He came nearer.

"Oh no, no, no!" she cried. "Don't touch me, Curtis! Don't come near—don't think I'm imagining things. I'm not. I—I never told anyone. Nobody knows. It was when I was seventeen—I—I—"

"Go on—don't stop—who was it? Who was it, I say!"

"Just a boy—a boy I knew. We loved each other, Curtis. I never had any love before. My aunts you know—they didn't love me. I never had any friends. Not even a dog, Curtis, or a kitchen.

"I don't see what a cat has to do with it."

"No, not only the kitten. Everything, Curtis. The loneliness. Everything so quiet and echoing and hostile. They were all so old, my aunts and Heeley and the house. And I never knew anyone young.

"And then this boy—came—and we loved each other. So much that nothing seemed to matter but that. Do you understand, Curtis? I'd like you to understand if you can. It will hurt so much thinking about you not understanding—all the rest of my life . . . I don't ask you to forgive me, but couldn't you just try to see how it happened. . . .

"I don't know."

Silence again.

"I don't know what to say to you," the muffled voice went on. "What have you left for me to say? Oh, Joan—to think that you—you—"

He pulled himself together with a tremendous effort. Forced himself to speak naturally. "Wait, Joan. I won't have you go home alone. Wait a minute, I'll take you."

"About breaking the engagement," she said, speaking very fast. "You can say anything you like. Anything that will make it easier for you. I'm sorry I didn't realize before . . .

She heard his rattling sigh. He was thinking about his mother now, and people. What people would say. Quickly she wrenched the ring from her swollen finger. "Here's—the ring—"

He took it, examining it curiously, as if he had never seen it before. "Couldn't you keep it for a time," he asked, "until we decide—"

"But we have decided!"

"No, not yet. You must give me time—to think it over—"

"But I can't think now. My head—all gone— I'll take you home, Joan. Tomorrow or the next day—"

So she let him drive her to Maisie's door. She even let him give her back the ring.

"But Curtis, you know it must come—we'll have to let people know. We can't go on this way—"

"Please—not now," he said dully. He turned and ran down the stairs, leaving her.

Brrrr . . . Brr . . .

Maisie stirred in her sleep.

Brr . . . Brr . . . Brr . . . Heavens, the alarm clock . . . she opened one eye reluctantly. Sun! Sun streaming right onto her bed! She'd overslept again. Darn that cheap clock, you couldn't depend on it. Must be 9 o'clock, and Joan still asleep . . .

Just one minute—to put the coffee on—and she was back at Joan's door. "Johnnie—get up this minute—I'm awfully sorry—I overslep'—"

"Well," she sputtered, when she had opened the door, "what does this mean?"

There was something about the way she was lying . . . something about the curve of her neck. . .

Ladies and Literature

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

Copyright, 1927, by Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

"SHOW me your books and I'll tell you what you are"—to paraphrase an old saying. But it's true! Haven't you ever looked around you in the car, or the bus, or the train, or perhaps in the library and noted the books that the girls were reading? Of course you have! Take your own self, for instance! What thrilled you at sixteen, bored you at eighteen and amused you at twenty. So there you are!

First you're keen for adventure and thrill to the princes and their "ladyes fair." Then you get sentimental and poetry has all the charms of the world for you. Then comes the day when nothing interests you but fashion books! Oh, how avidly you watch them for fear you'll miss the "LATEST" thing! Then you reach the intellectual stage and plow through weighty tomes that you don't particularly like, but feel you MUST read—because everybody else does. Why, one can almost tell you your age from your books.

But then comes the day when soft little arms creep 'round your neck and you hear "Mums, read me a story!" And out come the fairy tales and that's the reading you like best of all.

rich enough to buy honestly."

Roala was weak and weary when she sought her couch. But even this respite was not gained until she had prepared the evening meal for both the old people.

Her days of idleness during her sickness seemed to have turned them to greater selfishness than in the past. What tasks the old woman had shared were now turned upon her. Not only was she the earner of the daily meed of gold through the fairness of her face, the lure of her lissome body and the grace of her dancing, but the menial tasks of a servant were thrust upon her, too.

"I have changed somehow," she thought that night, as she tossed fitfully upon her couch. "A few short weeks ago and this life seemed all that I sought. It sufficed and we were happy. But now, it is empty. If I could only dream again, those same sweet dreams."

That night, when slumber finally crept upon her, a vision of her girlhood returned to her. She revisited the scenes of those faraway days when, in the deep shadows of the great forest trees and by the banks of running brooks, old Pairim was kind and gentle.

"Come now, my pretty one, and try the step again. Swing your hands this way, and twist the little foot about, just so. A spin, a bow, and then five steps and raise your arms."

All through the night she seemed repeating those earlier lessons until in weariness she fell upon the sward and wept. And in that dream her teacher, Pairim Gad, his long beard brown instead of white, whipped her until she dried her tears and tried the dance again, again, again!

And drearily Roala set herself to the tasks of the morning.

Through the day she toiled at bead work and the sewing of new fabrics with which to bedeck herself afresh for the dances of the twilight hour. It was then that the wealthier and more generous men were swarming through the streets, purchasing rugs and shawls, and fine laces, jewels and the various luxuries for their households.

"Up up, again!" Pairim Gad would command, after she had rested a few minutes while a crowd of onlookers would be dispersed after brisk solicitation by Nigill and her husband.

It seemed to the maiden that more and more was demanded of her with each hour.

The sun was dipping into the West when a group of white men, garbed far differently from the Sahibs of her knowledge, approached.

Rough, bearded, red of face and bulbous of cheeks and nose they were.

"Swing to, my lass!" one cried in English. "Ye're a fair one. Shake it up again."

He tossed a handful of silver coins to old Pairim, and obedient to the musician's command the girl danced again and yet again, as the rough traders crowded gleefully about.

Much English they spoke, with a barbarous, ill worded smattering of native talk in between. Even as in her dreams she seemed to understand the language of the white man, but in the native as in the talk of the whites there were many words which were beyond her grasp.

The Hindus crowding about would roar with boisterous mirth at many of these dialect words while the white men seemed to enjoy most heartily of all their own strange merriment among themselves.

Two of them offered bottles to Pairim, who at first refused to drink with them.

"Be careful, fool, lest thou lose what we have taken this day!" warned old Nigill sharply.

"Never fear, old dame," laughed one of the traders who had understood her words. "We have profited well this day, and will spend a bit upon you all at the tavern. Take the old man's money from him, so that it will be safe."

Another of the traders interrupted.

"Yes, we have robbed the merchants, but for our pleasure we pay well. Come, woman, and bring your pretty dancer with you. Let us have our own entertainment. . . . We pay for what we get."

And so it was that Nigill, her bright eyes twinkling with avarice, agreed to accompany them, with Pairim, to a native drinking hall, where many [illegible] and sat about tables with men of all colors. Roala they commanded to accompany them.

[illegible] there were with glittering, oblong eyes. More than one of them came to the table where the old pair sat on either side of the unhappy Roala.

They exchanged jests with the white traders. They offered coins to Pairim Gad demanding that he play his long reed pipe for them and the old man, gradually befuddled by his drinks, [illegible]. His wife drew in the money toward to the table, with her long thin hands.

But their eyes were not for Pairim nor yet Nigill. The old woman jealously interposed herself between them and the girl, as they strove to touch her, to speak with her or to hand her drinks.

"Dance!" they cried. "We will pay the musicians! Dance for us!"

The strange women about the stuffy place cried out shrilly [illegible] demanding that the maiden repeat the dance which she had given in the market place.

Puts New Life Into Dull, Tired, Faded Skin

Just a little Calonite powder sprinkled on a wet cloth and rubbed gently over the face before retiring will clear the pores of all dirt and dust and oil accumulation, preventing blackheads. It puts new life into dull, tired skin, so you will enjoy a good night's rest.

La-may Face Powder does not contain white lead or rice powder.

Now you can use a pure face powder that is guaranteed harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It cannot cause ugly coarse nose pores, blackheads and pimples. And, it really looks better and stays on longer than any other powder; it does not cake or flake the skin. It contains no white lead or rice starch to make it stay on so well. White lead poisons the skin and rice starch causes enlarged pores. The specialist who makes this better kind of powder makes it stay on by using a beauty-medicine that doctors use to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and [illegible] pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging the tell-tale lines of age. [illegible] this pure, improved kind of face powder, La May (French, Poudre L'Amé) has replaced other powders with millions of smart American women. It comes in white, flesh, brunette and tan at one dollar; also a small trial size. Remember, five thousand dollars reward is offered anybody who can buy a better powder than La-May even at five dollars a box. If you are offered a substitute your common sense will tell you it is wise to be an inferior powder that pays a fancy profit. When you try this pure La May and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion you will know why it is the most popular beauty powder sold in New York.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It [illegible] the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

Mass. Child Wouldn't Eat

"Everybody in the neighborhood was crazy about Dorothy. She was the happiest, brightest little thing you ever saw," says her mother, Mrs. N. W. Harris, 11 Washington Place, Boston. "She looked so healthy we thought she'd never have any trouble. But she began to be constipated. It made her fretful, cross and feverish. Her breath got to be terrible and her tongue was nearly always coated. She didn't want to do anything but lie around. She wouldn't eat and was losing weight fast.

"Then our doctor recommended California Fig Syrup and I began giving it to Dorothy. It brightened her up right away. She began to eat heartily and her stomach and bowels started acting perfectly. Soon she commenced gaining weight again and she's been perfectly well, strong and happy ever since."

California Fig Syrup is made from two of Nature's greatest laxatives—ripe California Figs and First Quality Senna Leaves. Children like its rich, fruity taste. It regulates their stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

The genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years, always bears the word "California." All drug stores have it.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

SOUTH'S holding, a semi-two-suiter with a singleton Heart, calls for a distributional take-out of his partner's Third Hand No Trump bid with a bid of two Spades; North, holding but two Spades and apparently double-stoppers in the three other suits, bids two No Trumps. South then shows his partner the two-suited or semi-two-suited character of his hand by bidding three Clubs, leaving North to decide as to the best bid for game between the combined hands. North decides that there exists a strong probability of game at Clubs and so leaves the bid in.

West opens with a trump, because such opening often offers the best defense against a two-suited hand when the partner of the two-suit bidder has denied one suit and accepted the other, the manifest purpose of the opening being to prevent if possible, the establishment by the two-suit bidder of the denied suit by means of the trumps in Dummy.

At Trick 4, Declarer takes a Heart finesse, though holding a singleton Heart, on the assumption that the Ace must lie with East, since West, who has already shown the Ace of Clubs, would probably have made an original bid had he also held the Ace of Hearts.

Having taken in the Diamond tricks, Declarer cross-ruffs the hand, using a small trump on the first Heart lead, knowing that West cannot overtrump since he is marked with the Queen of Hearts by the finesse in the suit. So played game was made in Clubs.

The subject of tomorrow's article will be "Dummy's Rights."

Today's question, to be answered by tomorrow's article, is: "What action by Dummy operates to limit his rights"

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self addressed stamped envelope.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

FLUFF of fur and shining eyes, every movement grace, something very calm and wise in your pointed face. Endless tricks that serve to lead thoughts and tasks astray, little lifted paws that plead in their helpless way. Brimming over with the fun of the sunlit hours, coat of silken softness spun, eyes like azure flowers. Gay as bluebird's lifted wing, ways demure and coy, such a useless little thing full of trust and joy. Useless? Yet perhaps not so, since such gladness lies in the little world you show love in furry guise.

PIMPLES CAUSED DISFIGUREMENT
On Face. Smarted Terribly. Cuticura Healed.

"I was troubled with pimples for about two years. My face was the only part affected. The pimples festered and scaled over causing disfigurement. When I washed my face they smarted something terrible.

"I used other remedies but none of them proved successful. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Dorothy Brown, 19 Union Ave., Jamaica Plain, Mass., April 6, 1928.

Use Cuticura to heal skin troubles.

Famous Lovers

TRULY it wyould hardly be fair to write about romances and neglect the well-beloved story of American history—that of Pocahontas and Capt. John Smith.

Capt. John Smith, the son of a well-to-do Englishman, had been all his life more or less of an adventurer. When the new land of Virginia was taken by the crown, nothing would do but that he explore the new country. In those days the problem of food and water was a difficult one for an expedition to the new country. Only the barest necessities could be carried, and they hardly lasted, for the trip took so long that frequently the ships landed in America with an almost starving crew and passengers.

Thus it was that Capt Smith arrived in America. He started on an exploration of the James River in search of food for his retinue, and was captured by the powerful chieftain Powhatan's warriors. Powhatan had heard of Smith and believed that he was endangering the Indians, so he determined to have his life.

Dragged to the settlement of the Indians, Smith was imprisoned in a wigwam while the tribe debated as to his ultimate fate.

Finally when he faced the council, it was decided that his head be beaten in with clubs.

While Smith was waiting the outcome of the council, the language of which he could not understand, his eyes wandered around the circle of faces which surrounded the council five. For a brief instant he looked into the eyes of the chieftain's most beloved daughter, the darling of the tribe, Pocahontas. In all those hostile eyes but one pair held any compassion or sympathy for the white man's plight.

When at last the tiresome ceremony was over and Smith was led forward to where a stone had been placed on the ground, Smith felt that the end was at last come. However, when the warrior lifted his arm to strike the first blow, it stopped in midair as a hush settled over the spectators. Suddenly a cry arose, and Smith felt soft arms around his neck. Pocahontas had thrown herself across Smith and the warriors were afraid to strike. Daring to her father's side she pleaded so hard that Smith was given his life. Shortly after Smith was returned to Jamestown, leaving a broken-hearted little Indian maiden.

Pocahontas afterward married an English officer, Thomas Rolfe, and embraced the Christian religion. She was presented to court and during her stay in England met Smith, whom she believed to be dead.

Whether it was a broken heart or not that killed her, remains unknown, but she died at the age of 23, leaving one son, to whom some of our finest families in Virginia can trace their origin.

The sublime and the ridiculous aren't so far apart, and neither are the nursery and the boudoir. Great stuffed dogs of all breeds and sizes, which formerly we associated with childhood ways, now decorate every up-to-date chaise longue. A wire haired fox terrier is particularly appealing, and comes in life size.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, my Daughter, commendable and wise are the ways of a man with morals, and his wife shall be envied in the Land For his price is above gold bonds and oil stock.

But a man with MANNERS is as a pusillus to the vanity. A satin shoe to the tender foot and a cool shower on a hot day—soothing and refreshing. Yet is he harder to find in a world full of cavemen and college cut-ups than a baked potato in a Chinese restaurant.

Lo, the courtly man hath a Code, and his technique is subconscious and smoother than velvet. But the boor is full of cavemannishness and audacity He is SO impetuous!

The courtly man bendeneth with all his ears while a woman speaketh, and regardeth her with admiring eyes. But the boor heareth her words only as a passing taxicab, for he is thinking up his next wise crack.

The polished man biddeth his time. He rusheth no woman. But the dub calleth every damsel "Cutie" or "Darling" before the hors d'oeuvres are served, and seeketh to put over the "petting" between the roast and the coffee.

* * *

The thoroughbred is full of thoughtfulness. He taketh notes and forgetteth not a woman's preferences. He putteth her comfort and her desires above his own convenience. He maketh her to feel that SHE is "IT".

But the egotist seeketh by to make a "hit." He starreth himself and maketh it clear that HE possesseth "IT." He is a cure for insomnia.

The gallant man turneth not away from the wall-flower to devote himself to the Charmer. He slighteth not one damsel that he may make good with another damsel. But the roughneck treadeth upon one woman's vanity in his effort to dazzle another woman.

The man with manners forgetteth not the little things. He keepeth his eye upon the ball. He ordereth the perfect dinner. He hasteneth to fill the empty glass and to supply the match.

But the boor devoteth himself to his viands and enjoyeth them. He noteth not the fallen handkerchief or the unlit cigarette.

The gentleman calleth not a woman up at the last moment, when nothing more INTERESTING hath materialized. He is prompt for his date and falleth not his hostess. Yet he is more flattering to the soul of a woman than a new hat and a beauty cream.

* * *

Verily, verily, peradventure it is pleasanter to dwell all thy days with a gentleman burglar who guardeth thy vanity and anticipateth thy wishes, than to be bound for life to an honest boor who causeth thee to blush for him in secret and to tremble for him in public. Yea virtue in an husband is a necessity, but beautiful MANNERS in any man are a luxury!

5% Gold Debentures Due 1963

(With Common Stock Purchase Warrants)

Dated November 1, 1928 Due November 1, 1963

Interest payable May 1 and November 1 at the agency of the Company in New York City, or, at the option of the holder, at the agency of the Company in Chicago or in Boston. Redeemable on any interest date on forty-five days' published notice at 105 and accrued interest through November 1, 1938; and at various reductions in the redemption price thereafter. Coupon Debentures in $1,000 denomination, registerable as to principal. Central Union Trust Company of New York, Trustee.

Debentures will carry non-detachable warrants entitling the holder of each $1,000 Debenture to purchase, subject to the Indenture provisions regarding stock dividends, recapitalization, etc., 15 shares of common stock of the Company during the periods, and on the basis as follows:

From	Nov. 1, 1928	thru	May 1, 1929,	@ $72 per share
"	May 2, 1929	"	Nov. 1, 1929,	" 74 " "
"	Nov. 2, 1929	"	May 1, 1930,	" 76 " "
"	May 2, 1930	"	Nov. 1, 1930,	" 78 " "
"	Nov. 2, 1930	"	May 1, 1931,	" 80 " "
"	May 2, 1931	"	Nov. 1, 1931,	" 82 " "

In case the Debentures are called for redemption before November 1, 1931, the warrants will become void at the close of business on the redemption day unless exercised prior thereto. Upon the exercise of rights, the Debentures must be presented so that the warrants may be detached by the Company. The stock will be delivered and payment therefor will be required thirty days after presentation of the warrants.

The Company will agree in the Indenture to make available semi-annually beginning November 1, 1929, funds sufficient to retire 1¼% of these Debentures at the time outstanding, if obtainable, during specified periods, by purchase at or below 100 and accrued interest.

TAX PROVISIONS: The Company will agree to pay interest without deduction for any Federal income tax not in excess of 2% per annum, and to refund Pennsylvania 4 mills tax, Maryland 4½ mills tax, Connecticut 4 mills tax, California 5 mills tax, and Massachusetts income tax not exceeding 6% per annum, upon application as provided in the Indenture.

For further information regarding the Company and these Debentures, attention is called to the letter of Mr. Henry L. Doherty, President of the Company, copies of which will be furnished on request and from which it will be noted, among other things, that:

Company: Cities Service Company controls, directly or indirectly through stock ownership, more than sixty public utility companies rendering electric light, power, gas and/or transportation service in eighteen states and the Dominion of Canada, serving territories having a population estimated to be about 4,000,000, and more than thirty companies representing an important system of oil production, transportation, refining and marketing. The public utility companies render service to over 700,000 customers in more than 900 communities. The domestic oil subsidiaries have a present daily average production of 49,000 barrels of crude oil. They own and operate seven refineries and about 1,200 miles of oil pipe lines. The more important petroleum properties are located in what is commonly called the Mid-Continent Field in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and the natural gas business is conducted principally in Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Arkansas.

Gross Earnings		$167,689,420
Operating Expenses, Maintenance, Taxes (except Federal Income Taxes) and amounts applicable to minority common stocks		103,488,110
Consolidated Net Earnings before Interest, Depreciation, Depletion and Other Reserves, Dividends, etc.		$ 64,201,310
Annual Interest and Dividends on funded debt and preferred stocks of subsidiaries	$21,415,937
Annual interest requirements on funded debt of Cities Service Company to be outstanding after giving effect to this financing	5,029,575	26,445,512

Net Earnings Before Reserves, etc., as Above, Are Over 2.4 Times the Above Annual Charges

The dividends which the Company now receives from one of its subsidiaries, Cities Service Power & Light Company, alone are at an annual rate in excess of the annual interest charges on funded debt of Cities Service Company to be outstanding upon completion of this financing.

Indenture: The Indenture will provide among other things, that the Company shall not pledge any of its securities owned without equally and ratably securing these Debentures, except in the case of purchase money liens and except in the case of pledge of certain assets in the ordinary course of business to secure current borrowings. The Indenture may be amended in certain respects with the consent of the holders of not less than 85% of the outstanding Debentures.

Capitalization: The consolidated capitalization of the Company and subsidiaries as of June 30, 1928, after giving effect to this financing, shows outstanding funded debt, preferred stocks and minority common stocks of subsidiaries amounting to $371,530,178, $2,030,000 Equipment Trust Certificates; and $100,591,500 funded debt of the Company which will be followed by preferred and common stocks with an aggregate market value based on current quotations of over $450,000,000.

We Recommend These Debentures for Investment

Price 97½ and Interest

These Debentures are offered for delivery when, as and if issued by us and subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that temporary Debentures will be available for delivery on or about November 1, 1928.

TRAVEL-TOURS-HOTELS-RESORTS

YARMOUTH LINE CHANGES TIME

In connection with the excursion now being operated by the Eastern Steamship lines between Boston and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, officials have announced that effective Oct. 15 the S. S. Yarmouth will leave Boston at 5 p. m., standard time, on Mondays and Thursdays. Sailing time has previously been 2 p. m.

However, the new sailing time is considered a much more convenient hour and permits passengers to reach Halifax within 24 hours via railroad connections made with the Dominion Atlantic and Canadian National Railways at Yarmouth.

Tickets will be on sale until Oct. 31 and the low round trip excursion rates will prevail until that time. Ample time is given for a stay-over in Yarmouth as tickets are good within 10 days from date of sale. Tickets sold on Oct. 30 and 31 will be good for sailing Thursday, Nov. 1, from Boston.

American's Travel Editor Will Help You Plan Tour

Are you planning a tour or trip anywhere in the world?

If so, full information on such trips, including rates, sailing dates, hotels, etc., may be secured promptly by writing to Travel Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston.

COLPITT'S IN TOUR TO WASHINGTON

Another sightseeing and educational tour to the National Capitol will be conducted by Colpitt's Tourist Co., leaving Boston, Sunday, October 27 via Merchant and Miners line sailing to Norfolk and Baltimore.

The party will visit Old Point Comfort, Hampton and Annapolis. During the stay in Washington, liberal sightseeing trips of the city, public buildings, Arlington and Mt. Vernon will be enjoyed.

Dine and Dance Review

Tonight will be theatrical night at Yoeng's Kenmore restaurant at Kenmore station. Tom Maren, master of ceremonies announces that he has completed arrangements to have a large number of the celebrities from Boston's leading playhouses as guests. During the fall and winter season in the future, it is planned to observe theatrical guest night every Friday and a large array of talent will attend.

The cabaret show this week includes Harry Ashton and Rutina and her five dancing girls. Henry Davis and his novelty orchestra furnish an excellent program of dancing music.

The late show tonight will begin at 11 and continue until 2 a. m.

The newest of the Boston supper clubs has just opened its doors at 324 Newbury st., the Embassy club owned and operated by the management of the world-famous Club Lido in New York City. The Farrell O'Neil orchestra plays for dancing, and Miller and Farrell entertain with songs. The Embassy club is open nightly from 10 o'clock, with a special dinner dance every Thursday at 7 o'clock.

An innovation in Boston's hostelries has just been introduced at Hotel Arlington by George E. Clark, manager, with the opening of the beautiful Spanish and garden rooms for dining and dancing. Under the guidance of Mr. Clark, the Arlington is rapidly becoming known as a hotel which appeals to people of fastidious taste at reasonable expense. This feature will be further carried out in serving a full course dinner from 6 to 9, and an a la carte bill from 9 to 12, both without cover charges. There is dancing both in the Spanish Room and in the adjacent garden room.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land. In order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

First Find the Facts

How Sales Problems Are Attacked AND SOLVED by Progressive New Englanders

"What is the best way to distribute goods?"

"How can our sales department be organized to sell most effectively?"

"How can relations with dealers be improved?"

"How can each salesman be made most productive?"

The way in which New England business houses are attacking these and other problems of sales management with research methods is described in a booklet—the fifth in a series of reports on applying research to sales—just issued by the New England Council. Like its predecessors the booklet was prepared for the Council by the Policyholders' Service Bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Interviewing 334 representative New England organizations, the investigators find that success in distributing manufactured products is usually attained after careful investigation has revealed the most suitable method of distribution.

Examples are given with convincing effect. One concern, realizing that its sales in New England were falling off in comparison with the rest of the country, conducted a special survey of the territory, with the result that methods of distribution were changed to fit the market. The new system has proved successful.

New England manufacturers who have made use of the fact-finding method in connection with their problems will find the newest Council publication encouraging. Others, not yet "sold" on the value of research, may find it stimulating. The booklet is obtainable from the New England Council on request.

Dancing Slippers

How Much Profit for the Maker When They Retail for $6?

Circumstances surrounding the rejection at Lynn of an order for 5000 pairs of dancing slippers remind us of the day when "Ma" and the girls thought themselves fortunate if each had one pair of shoes "for best."

That is, of course, one pair "besides these."

The order was turned down because the prospective buyer wished to retail the slippers at $6 a pair.

With silver kid costing $1.25 a foot, and 14-karat gold kid costing $1.50, the manufacturer was unable to produce them at anything like "a price."

Commenting on the incident, the trade reporter who writes so interestingly about shoes for the Lynn Item says:

"An order of this size would astonish an old-timer who remembers when a PAIR of dancing slippers gleamed in the average packing room, loaded up with black staple shoes, like a lighthouse in a dark sea."

The incident IS illuminating. When an order for 5000 pairs of dancing slippers can go wandering about in this way we may be sure it is only one of many. The world may not be "dance mad," but it IS dancing.

And it is not discomforting to know that SOME orders get away from the New England shoe manufacturer because there is no profit in them for the employer of the best skilled labor.

Why Bother With Cavalry?

THIS IS "BIG BOY," ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S HEAVY "TANKS"

This monster of war, a caterpillar tractor, equipped with heavy guns, fighting men inside of it, protected by thick armor, is one of the most powerful and fearful weapons of modern war.

Such a tank as this could plough its way cruelly, remorselessly through ten thousand or a hundred thousand cavalry, mounted men and horses of the old kind.

This tank will keep going as long as its fuel lasts, horses and their riders could do no more against it than flies could do against cavalry horses.

Having this weapon, why does this country continue to spend money on cavalry and men that ride little horses, offer-

WON'T POWER HAS GOOD POINTS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE is a good deal of talk about Will Power, but there is a stronger power than that. It is Won't Power.

There is a good deal more power in holding back than in going forward. A mule can only pull a certain load, but if the mule balks it takes a great deal of power to move him. That is, he has more power in standing still and refusing to go than he has in going forward.

A man who ought to know about autos said one time that an automobile engine has more power in going backwards than forwards.

People are always complaining about their lack of Will Power. There are many books and teachers for the training of the Will. Alcohol and other drugs are supposed to impair the Will Power. A man is presumed to proceed along the downward path because he has no Will Power. That is the reason he cannot resist temptation.

But it does not take Will Power to resist bad habits, or otherwise keep from doing wrong. It takes something else that almost everybody has, even the weaklings. It takes Won't Power.

Anybody can be stubborn, and mule-like refuse to move.

Some people cannot come to a decision, they are watery and inefficient when it comes to doing a certain thing. But even the most namby-pamby and vacillating can refuse to do a thing. It doesn't take Will Power. It doesn't take reason. All it takes is pure stubbornness. And even the weakest can be stubborn.

An old sot once suddenly quit drinking and stayed quit. I asked him how he came to do it. He said: "Well, I just happened to think that I didn't have to make any good resolutions or pray for strength or anything like that. I just didn't have to do it. That's all. Nobody, not even myself, could make me drink. I just didn't have to put the stuff in my mouth. I made up my mind that the best way to quit was to q-u-i-t."

This is a trick worth knowing. We can sometimes do things, or rather refuse to do them, by digging our heels in the sand and refusing to budge, better than by prayer and wrestling.

The first thing anybody wants to do if they have been doing wrong is to quit. Have all the emotions you want to after that, but all reform begins with what Carlyle calls "The Everlasting No."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHEN I was a little girl a certain verse in the Bible used to rouse my curiosity. It spoke of "the wicked flourishing."

This, I thought, was most monstrously unjust. Why should the wicked flourish? What was the use of being good if bad people got along just as well or even better? Yet the Bible said they did. And as I grew older I discovered that this fact was most disconcertingly true.

Bad people did get on. They got on amazingly. They made money and bought fine houses and enjoyed good health and lived to a ripe old age.

Good people, on the other hand, were often out of work and down at the heel. They wore shabby clothes and had colds in their heads and never seemed to have any luck. Banks foreclosed on their mortgages, their children sickened for lack of proper care and they never could keep up their insurance.

In vain I tried to assure myself that "those whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." It didn't seem reasonable. What's the use in being loved, cried my heretic mind, if all you get out of it is a chastening?

For a long time these circumstances aroused rebellion in my mind, as I suspect they've aroused it in yours. Every time I saw a flourishing bad person I got mad. Every time I saw an unfortunate good person I thought God was a meanie. But at last I think I've discovered the secret.

The people who get ahead are the people who know what they want and go after it. Selfish people, wicked people usually know what they want. They have a definite purpose and they hammer at it steadily. Each act is constructive—positive. They flourish not because they are wicked but because they have the right technique.

The people who don't get ahead are the people who don't know exactly what they want and who therefore waste themselves in aimless fumbling. They may have a general peevish, wistful desire for success and power but they have no constructive plan for attaining it. They spend their time in lamenting and praying—in negative gesture—instead of bustling on the job.

All too often good people have this negative quality.

They think that they've done enough if they're just good. They do not remember the wise axiom—"IT IS NOT ENOUGH TO BE GOOD YOU MUST BE GOOD FOR SOMETHING."

Many good people resist temptation but they do not lean on opportunity. They expect God to do the rest. But why should God reward us for merely resisting temptation? From all indications God wants results and lots of them.

And He has placed in us qualities which will produce results if we use them. He didn't intend that the wicked should grab off all the $ per cent investments. But if the good people lie down on the job and the wicked don't, what can He do about it?

I doubt if anyone will get a seat in heaven just because he has been out of jail here on earth. Personally I'd prefer a lively sinner to a limp saint any day. But maybe I'm wrong.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

True wit is nature to advantage dressed.
What oft was thought, but ne'er so well expressed. —Pope.

It is easier to be wise for others than for one's self. —La Rochefoucauld.

The knowledge of man is as the waters, some descending from above and some springing up from beneath: the one informed by the light of nature, the other inspired by divine revelation.—Bacon.

The worst kind of shame is being ashamed of frugality or poverty. —Livy.

New York Day by Day

O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—A young man or woman cannot live independently or decently in New York on less than $35 a week. And even this amount requires scrimping. Such is the warning broadcast by the Welfare Council, an organization devoted to helping the stranger within the gates.

It further admonishes boys and girls from the prairie cottage and village street that to come here without a job, friends, relatives or bank account is merely inviting a demoralizing situation from which only a slim few are extricated.

Blame is placed on the movies and fiction writers in general for creating a glamour of success seldom realized. For every handful that survive and succeed there are thousands who find their lives and character permanently affected.

The greatest difficulty for those who fail is they will rarely return home. The fear of criticism or ridicule turns them into professional drifters. The Bowery bread line and other charitable institutions are clogged with those dreading the home town scorn.

Those who deal with sociological problems are firm in their conviction that trained as well as untrained workers coming to New York for jobs should not attempt to experiment without sufficient funds to carry them through at least four months' idleness.

This opinion is based on experiences with tens of thousands applicants served yearly by non-commercial registries. It is in the fall most of the young hopefuls make the plunge to seek fame and fortune in the chilly metropolitan waters.

There is a deep-rooted impression New York is the easiest city in the world in which to win success. This is true if one can weather the period of adjustment that is a natural accoms of a city so big and complex. My personal opinion is strangers should have funds sufficient to support them a year.

NEW YORK restaurants suffer losses in patronage through stupidity and stubbornness of head waiters and waiter captains seating customers. One of the annoying customs is to place "Reserved" cards on unreserved tables. This is a method of holding back a good table for the unexpected and favored patron which in itself may be all right. The annoyance is in using it as a bait for grafting tips. Restaurant patrons should be permitted, as they are in Europe, to make their table selections in order of appearance. The hardened diner-out abroad never permits a head waiter to pilot him to some obscure part of the room if desirable tables are unoccupied. He demands his rights, and gets them or someone is liable to find himself knee deep in daisies.

AND this will probably not be received with a big hug by restaurant proprietors, but it is my observation the tasty customer gets the best table, the best service and doubtless the best food. The meek-mannered and considerate are parked behind a palm within touching distance of the trap drummer and are given the consideration of an unpopular stepchild. The blusterer is the fair-haired boy in cafes.

IT is also true people who would not think of displaying their temper in a department store or haberdashery shop will explode and raise the roof in a restaurant. To interfere with a man seeking to satisfy his appetite for food is to court a ruckus.

UNTIL tipping is abolished restaurant service will never be ideal. The generous tipper will naturally receive the soft attentions the parsimonious are denied. The Chinese cafes come nearest to solving the problem. Most of them permit their waiters to share in the profits and a skimpy tip does not curl their lip.

O, I DON'T know! If no one else will stand up, I'll take a bow.

We Have These

ing good targets to machine guns, and bombs from the air, soft as putty before the attack of the fighting tank? The answer is simple.

It takes men a long time to change, a long time to adjust themselves to new conditions.

When they first made automobiles, they put "dashboards" in the front, although there were no horses to kick mud against the dashboard.

When they first had steamboats, they put sails on them because they said, "What shall we do in case steam gave out, of course we MUST have sails."

Now they have the airplane, a machine costing fifty thousand dollars, able to destroy with one bomb a $50,000,000 battleship, but they still build battleships.

And, having these tanks, they still equip and maintain cavalry regiments.

A few gas bombs, able to kill everything within a square mile of where they land, would, of course, soon end the infantry nonsense.
